Pleasing to the Bald
Food Will Last

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1926, by The Star Company)

THE LETTER that Clemenceau sent to President Coolidge expressed no high opinion of the United States' attitude on the war debts. The old French Tiger is fighting for his country and uses the weapons at hand.

FOUR YEARS AGO, when he wrote an introduction for his book, called "Industrial America in the World War," Clemenceau thought well of the United States and what it had done for France. Read this extract from M. Clemenceau's own writing:

"Meanwhile, here are some eloquent figures. In eighteen months the United States sent us 5,000,000 tons of food supplies and 5,000,000 tons of war material. The steel they sent us represented the raw material for 160,000,000 '75' shells. The foodstuffs they sent us fed 12,000,000 Frenchmen for a year and a half. If this help had not been forthcoming, our army could not have held."

When Clemenceau wrote that, Europe had not yet changed Uncle Sam's name to "Uncle Shylock."

2 MORE TURNED BACK IN CHANNEL ATTEMPT

Calais, France, Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—Still another pair of champion swimmers have failed in their attempt to conquer the English Channel.

Madame Jane Sion, French woman swimming ace, and Omer Perrault, the French-Canadian star, were forced to abandon their effort at about 3 o'clock this morning. A high wind and rain contributed materially to the defeat.

The couple, accompanied by a single tug, left Griz Nez at 10:18 o'clock last night. At 2:30 o'clock this morning they had covered seven miles. This was the last heard from them until later this morning, when they arrived on their tug at Calais.

The water, they said, was icy cold which, together with the wind, placed success out of reach. This was Perrault's second attempt in a few days. Madams Sion has also tried before.

"I'm through. I'll never try again," Madams Sion told newspaper men. "It is too terrible."

THREE FACING ARREST IN HALL MURDER CASE

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 11.—Two important arrests are expected to be made today in connection with the Hall-Mills slaying of four years ago. Both of these arrests will be made in New Brunswick. There may be a third arrest, made in Somerville.

This was the assertion of one of the investigators in the slaying of the New Brunswick rector, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and the choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

Police action, the investigator admitted, would be based on an interview with Mrs. Jane Gibson, the State's chief witness. Mrs. Gibson, he added, has positively identified a man and a woman at the scene of the slaying. Mrs. Gibson is putting her story into a sworn statement.

STORE BANDIT SLAIN BY WOUNDED OFFICER

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A robber was killed and a detective, who engaged him in a gun battle, was seriously wounded today after an attempted holdup of an upper Fifth avenue grocery store. John Hutchinson, the store manager, was slightly wounded.

Michael McDonald entered the store and demanded the receipts. Detective John P. Cook, answering a general alarm, fired at McDonald from an auto as he fled. The gunman sent a bullet into the detective close to the heart, hurling him from the car. From a prone position Cook fired a second shot which brought McDonald down.

BESEECHES LORD OF HOSTS TO SAVE BOY FROM CHAIR

While lawyers are seeking every possible loophole in the attempt to save the carbarn trio from the death chair, Mrs. Nora Heinlein, mother of one of the three, places her faith in prayer. She has converted her son's room, left just as it was the night he was arrested, into an altar, and here, alone, she sends up her appeal for clemency, surrounded by the pictures, the radio, the things her boy loved, at their home in Arlington street, Brighton.

STAY OF DEATH UP TO FULLER FOR CARBARN 3 AFTER COURT REBUFF

Justice Henry K. Braley in the Supreme Court today flatly rejected pleas for the three condemned carbarn slayers, but gave Attorney Francis A. Juggins twenty days in which to file exceptions.

This allowance of twenty days does not necessarily mean that the execution of the youths, scheduled for this week, will be postponed.

That matter rests with Governor Fuller alone and Attorney Juggins said he would not request the Governor for a reprieve until tomorrow.

Meantime the sentence of death this week still hangs over the heads of John J. Devereaux, Edward J. Heinlein and John J. McLaughlin.

Juggins said he would wait until after the hearing tomorrow in Superior Court at East Cambrids when a motion for a new trial will be heard before Judge Frederick Fosdick.

Juggins expected to complete his bill of exceptions and to file it with the clerk of the Supreme Court today. Should tomorrow's hearing result in another adverse decision, he will file a second bill of exceptions with the Supreme Court.

The three mothers of the condemned youths were among the throng in the courtroom at Pemberton square when Justice Braley ruled adversely on petitions for writs of habeas corpus and mandamus.

SLAYERS CHEERFUL

The condemned slayers themselves were not present. They were forced to wait in suspense at the death-house until the hearing was over, when Heinlein's father and mother, believing that the result was generally favorable to the youths, went and gave them the news.

The men were cheerful, seeing the possibility of a long fight ahead.

Many women, including most of the women members of the clemency committee who have been tireless in behalf of the trio, heard Justice Braley deny the pleas.

Dismissal of the petition by Justice Braley came after a hearing lasting an hour and five minutes, most of which was consumed by Attorney Juggins arguing for a writ of mandamus to force the Governor and Council to consider jointly the question of Devereaux's sanity.

He claimed that Devereaux is now insane and should be removed from the death house for that reason. At least, he declared, he should be granted until a privileged and care-

Detroit, Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—Sixteen members of the Detroit baseball club narrowly escaped death today when the Pullman car in which they were sleeping burst into flames at Decatur, Ill., according to a dispatch received here.

The ball players were forced to flee the burning car in their night clothes, the dispatch stated.

REPORT 100 KILLED IN MEXICO CHURCH RIOT

Mexico City, Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—Almost 100 persons were killed in fighting for possession of churches in the States of Michoacan, Jalisco and Guadalajara, in connection with the dispute between the Catholic Church and the government of Mexico, delayed reports indicated today.

Forty Catholic, including several priests, were killed in Zacuayo, Michoacan, alone, according to Leopoldo Ruiz Guerros, Archbishop of Michoacan, who arrived in the capital today with a tale of harrowing experiences.

Seventeen of this number, the archbishop said, were cold-blooded executions perpetrated by the soldiers after victory had been conceded

The Indians throughout Michoacan were in a highly inflammatory state and the archbishop said that further bloodshed was almost inevitable. He said he was forced to flee because the authorities tried to arrest him, notwithstanding the fact that he had done his utmost to calm the Catholics.

American officials have just received confirmation of the report that between fifty and sixty have been killed in the struggle for the possession of the three churches in Guadalajara.

The situation in Jalisco is represented as grave, although actual fighting appears to have ceased.

WORLD COURT BACKER IS BEATEN IN OHIO

Columbus O., Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—The Drys put over two big winners in Ohio's primary, returns from almost half of the State's 849 precincts showed today.

Myers Cooper of Cincinnati, president of the Ohio Council of Churches, won the Republican nomination for Governor.

Senator Frank B. Willis walked off with the Republican nomination for United States Senator.

The vote gave indications that every candidate for nomination on both tickets who declared definitely against prohibition had been beaten.

In the Democratic senatorial race, ex-Senator Atlee Pomerene, an acknowledged Wet, defeated Judge Florence Allen, a Dry and an exponent of the World Court.

Pomerene's victory forecast a bitter Wet-Dry battle in Ohio at the November election.

Governor Vic Donahey won the Democratic nomination for Governor, beating his nearest opponent,

JUSTICE BRALEY DISMISSES PLEAS FOR LIVES OF SLAYERS

CARBARN 3 LOSE IN COURT

ful examination of his mental status can be made.

The cases of Heinlein and McLaughlin are indissolubly linked with that of Devereaux, and a respite must be granted for both, too, Attorney Juggins declared.

"Do you offer evidence relating to Heinlein and McLaughlin?" asked Justice Braley.

"My evidence all relates to Devereaux," replied Juggins.

"I rule first that in the cases of McLaughlin and Heinlein, petitioners, no case has been presented to me," said Justice Braley. "These petitions severally are dismissed.

"It is plain from the fundamental law of habeas corpus that the court has no power to determine the sanity of Devereaux at the present time in order to suspend the sentence which was lawfully imposed. That petition is dismissed.

"I come now to the petition of Devereaux for a writ of mandamus. What are the facts? Devereaux has filed a petition addressed to Governor and Council, setting forth that since his conviction he has become insane and he asks that sentence be suspended until his sanity has been determined. What action has the Governor taken?"

Assistant Attorney-General James H. Devlin: "The Governor has not seen fit to take action."

Judge Braley: "He simply remained inactive?"

Devlin: "Yes, Your Honor."

Attorney Juggins: "The Governor's secretary telephoned me and said the Governor had decided not to consider the petition."

Judge Braley: "Let that be entered in the record. It is very important."

Then Judge Braley turned to Attorney Juggins—"Now what are the grounds upon which you believe the court may issue a writ of mandamus?"

PLEA BY JUGGINS.

Attorney Juggins then made an eloquent plea based on Statute 48, which reads: "If it appears to the satisfaction of the Governor and Council that a convict under sentence of death becomes insane, a respite may be granted until they are satisfied the convict is no longer insane."

Attorney Juggins emphasized the point that the law says "Governor and Council," and he argued that the Governor, according to the law, cannot take a stand without the Council.

"Am I to be precluded merely because the Governor tells me he will not take action?" the attorney asked.

Judge Braley—"The petition is dismissed on the ground that legislative action is lodged with the Governor alone."

Judge Braley to Attorney Juggins —"Is there any ruling of law you wish me to make?"

Attorney Juggins—"I ask you to rule that the matter of a petition on behalf of Devereaux for a writ of mandamus should be submitted to the Council."

Judge Braley—"I decline so to rule, but I save your exceptions."

COULDN'T GRANT STAY.

A long conference in the judge's lobby followed the decision and then in open court once more Attorney Juggins asked a stay of execution.

"I have no authority to do that," said Justice Braley.

He then said he would give twenty days to file exceptions, and Attorney Juggins went to the State House to see the Governor, with whom the question of a reprieve was believed to rest.

The condemned trio were not brought from their death-house though they were eager to attend the hearing upon which so much depended. Beside their mothers other members of their families were present, all inconspicuous in the immense crowd.

Mrs. Devereaux, mother of the youth about whom the fight centres, was dressed entirely in black.

Outsiders were not permitted to enter the courtroom until all the officials involved were present. Special guards assigned by John A. Kelher, sheriff of Suffolk County, were on hand and did excellent work holding the crowd in check and forcing even the most excited to conduct themselves in an orderly manner.

Just before the hearing began defense attorneys took seats at the front. They included Dr. Isadore Greene of Bay State road and Dr. Edward B. Lane of the Adams Nervine Hospital, Jamaica Plain.

Warden Hendry sat inconspicuously at the side of the room. District Attorney Arthur K. Reading of Middlesex county, who prosecuted the three youths, John J. Devereaux, Edward J. Heinlein and John J. McLaughlin, at the trial in which they were convicted, was announced as the government's spokesman at the hearing.

With Reading were Bernard Wiseman and James H. Devlin, assistants to the Attorney-General. Devlin addressed the court and said Reading would represent the government. Reading arose to begin argument.

"You are the petitioner?" interrupted Justice Braley.

"No, your honor," replied the district attorney. "Attorney Juggins is the petitioner."

Attorney Juggins was then called upon to make his argument.

READS PETITIONS.

He started to review the history of the case, but Justice Braley told him he must first read his petitions. Justice Braley asked him to state formally in whose behalf he appeared and Juggins named the condemned men.

Attorney Juggins asked permission to read his amended petition, in which he took up a slightly different angle of the alleged insanity of Devereaux, and the court asked: "Does the government consent?"

"We do," said Reading, and Juggins then slowly read the entire petition which constitutes the first of his three moves to save the trio.

Attorney Juggins read three separate habeas corpus petitions, one for each of the condemned men, first reading that for Devereaux, then McLaughlin's and last Heinlein's. The first alleged that Devereaux is now insane, while the other two asserted that McLaughlin and Heinlein should be saved because at the time of the murder Devereaux, who committed the actual slaying, was insane.

CALLS FOR TYPIST.

He then asked a writ of habeas corpus to stay the execution of the death sentence until Devereaux's mental responsibility or irresponsibility can be determined.

The hearing was under way a short time when Justice Braley noticed that there was no court stenographer and he ordered the clerk to get one immediately. A girl stenographer was brought in.

The attorney for the condemned youths spent little time on the habeas corpus petition, but devoted most of his time to arguing on the mandamus petition, which he next took up.

In this petition he asked a writ of mandamus from the Supreme Court to force the Governor and Council to take up jointly the question of Devereaux's mentality. Arguments for the condemned men, addressed to Governor and Council, have heretofore not reached the Council, Governor Fuller choosing to handle them himself.

In his argument on the mandamus petition he stressed the point that he claimed Devereaux is now insane, regardless of what he may have been at the time of his trial. He said he was trying to save him from the death-house as an insane man.

He brought out, however, that information he has gathered in the short time at his disposal tends to prove that there is grave doubt of Devereaux's mental condition when the crime was committed, with the strong probability that Devereaux, Heinlein and McLaughlin are all facing death for the act of an insane man.

"If a man sentenced to death is insane, application for a respite may be made to the Governor and such respite should continue in effect until the Governor and Council shall determine what is to be done," he said. "I contend that Governor and Council should act conjointly and not disjointly in this matter.

DEMANDS RESPITE.

"The situation is this—Devereaux is now hourly expecting to be executed. He is held in the death-house. The Governor has refused to submit our petition to the Council. It is our contention Devereaux is insane and should not be put to death.

"At this time we are not asking for the liberty of the man, but simply that he be removed from the death-house until such time as his sanity or insanity is properly determined. We ask that a respite be granted until this is determined and until we have an opportunity to assemble all the facts.

"McLaughlin and Heinlein are under sentence of death by reason of the fact they engaged in an enterprise with Devereaux at the time Devereaux killed a man. They are held technically under that law which says that when a person goes out to commit a felony and murder results, he is guilty of first degree murder.

"We want to have Devereaux's mentality determined by the Governor and Council. It is difficult not to mention the case of Heinlein and McLaughlin whenever that of Devereaux is mentioned, because all are inter-related. The matter of a respite affects them all.

"They were ably represented at the trial at which I was not a member of the defense counsel. I have had but little time and it has been difficult to obtain all the facts which we feel necessary to establish our claims. I have searched inside the State and outside, and there are still more records I desire to consult.

"We find that Devereaux, when in the service of his country, was pronounced deficient, and is still drawing compensation on that account."

FAMILIES DAZED.

The families of the three condemned men seemed dazed after the sombreness of her costume. Even the beads about her neck were black.

The stricken mother held a handkerchief in her right hand, while her head rested on her left hand. She twisted the handkerchief nervously now and then pressing it to her eyes.

When Attorney Juggins mentioned her son's name the mother broke into sobs, while her eyes continually sought the Judge's face, although to read there some hope for her son.

On either side of their mother sat the two daughters. They showed no trace of tears, but every nerve in their bodies was palpably tensed. Now and again they leaned forward in their seats, caught something that their mother failed to hear or understand and whispered to her.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heinlein, the latter accompanied by her nurse, Mrs. Coyle, were later than the Devereaux family in arriving at the courtroom. They did not attempt to find seats at once, but stood in the corridor where they could easily hear Atty. Juggins' voice.

The ordeal that Mrs. Heinlein has been through was plainly written on her face. The woman was haggard, pale, worn almost to a shadow.

McLaughlin's three sisters also arrived late and found seats for themselves very quietly.

Slayers' Mothers at Tragic Session

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Mrs. William Devereaux, mother of the actual killer, about whom the whole last appeal for three lives centres, made a tragic picture in court today.

Accompanied by her two daughters, she arrived after the proceedings had opened and unobtrusively found a seat in a corner of the room.

She was dressed all in black, only a rose in her black hat relieving

Judge Braley had dismissed the petitions.

They did not know whether a loop-hole had been left by the judge's words that he would save the exceptions, and when they frantically sought out Atty. Juggins they found him deep in conversation with District Attorney Reading of Middlesex.

The relatives of Heinlein and McLaughlin were fearful that, as the exceptions saved relatives only of Devereaux, Heinlein and McLaughlin would go to the chair immediately in any event.

Peter McLaughlin Held as Gang Leader, Disappointed

Proceedings in Supreme Court today in the carbarn slayers' case were followed intently by Attorney George A. Douglas, counsel for Peter McLaughlin, who is awaiting trial as one of the gang that held up the Waltham carbarn when the watchman there was slain.

Afterwards the attorney went to East Cambridge jail and conferred for an hour with McLaughlin, who is a brother of John J. McLaughlin, one of the condemned trio.

"I am disappointed at the result of the hearing," he quoted McLaughlin as saying. "I have followed every angle of the case closely and am now too ready to help my brother and the other two boys if I can be of any service. I was done a grave injustice by the false report that I refused to aid them."

SPRINGFIELD BOY DROWNS FIVE FEET FROM SHORE

Springfield, Aug. 11.—Seized with cramps while bathing in Walarshops Pond in this city, Thomas Griffin, eight, of No. 491 Liberty street, was drowned about five feet from shore. Griffin, who was unable to swim, got just a bit beyond his depth and sank suddenly.

Arthur Rapuandi recovered the body while police were dragging for it a short distance away. The police worked over the boy with a pulmotor without success.

3 Doomed Men Eager to Go to Court

The carbarn trio chafed at the uncertainty of the day's proceedings in their cells in the deathhouse today. They continually queried a deputy warden and Father Murphy as to whether or not they were to make their appearances in court.

Each had hoped eagerly for the short respite from the gray walls of the deathhouse.

BRITISH MINERS REJECT CHURCH PEACE PLAN

London, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—British coal miners, now in the fourteenth week of their strike, have caused general surprise by voting 547,659 to 330,026 to refuse to accept the project of the church leaders of England by which it was hoped peace could be arranged and the strike ended. The compulsory wage arbitration clause of the plan is suggested as having caused objection of the miners to it. The vote was taken by order of a miners' delegate conference.

troops have fired on crowds before the Catholic churches in Mexico and there have been at least a hundred casualties, according to charges published today by the Observatore Romano, official organ of the Vatican.

The Observatore declares that "despite the complacent silence of the government and the press" in Mexico there have been serious clashes.

Mexico to Probe 400 "Hidden Property" Cases

Mexico City, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Since the present religious controversy developed about 100 "denouncements" of the Catholic church property have been made to government officials.

Within the past few years about three hundred denouncements were made but not settled. Thus four hundred denouncements are pending and Attorney-General Ortegn has ordered representatives of the Department of Justice to immediately investigate the situation.

A denouncement means that a person, whose name is never made public, informs the government that a certain piece of property, which more often than not is not used for religious purposes and does not seem to belong to a church, is, in fact, church property held in the name of some private individual.

The Mexican constitution forbids church ownership of property or priests from holding property for the church or a third party posing as the owner for the purpose of protecting church property.

Any person "denouncing" or informing the government of such disguised ownership receives a certain percentage of the value of the property if the government finds the information given is correct and it seizes the property.

Catholic Leaders Against Any Revolt in Mexico

Mexico City, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The controversy between the Mexican Government and the Catholic Church over the putting into effect of the government's religious regulations showed no signs of lessening today.

The Catholic authorities, who consistently have ordered moderation and no violence, declared today that it would not support any revolution. The episcopate went further when in a statement to the Associated Press it asserted that in the event Mexico was menaced by armed conflict with a foreign power the church and its members would support the Mexican government with absolute loyalty.

The government and the episcopate continue publishing their respective declarations that there will be no modification in nor acceptance of the religious regulations.

Hope, although it is considered slim, persists that the new Congress in September will modify the regulations, but it is said that unless President Calles, who controls the legislative body, changes his attitude, it seems that Congressional relief is doubtful.

The economic boycott called in protest against the government's policy of persecution continues to be the cause of much apprehension as far as a considerable actual reduction in business.

Mexican Consul Scores Catholic Boycott Plan

New York, Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—Arturo M. Elias, consul-general of Mexico, issued a statement today from his office here attacking the Catholic boycott because of their appeal for a country-wide boycott. He said:

"The appeal for a boycott issued by supporters of the church in its struggle against certain provisions of the Constitution contains an appeal that no society of anarchists has ever equalled. Here is the paragraph in the appeal that begins, 'Catholics, through this boycott we will triumph':

"'Refuse to pay rent, light and telephone bills and stop all classes of payments until this brings serious danger.'

"Is not this a dastardly depth for those who call themselves religious to descend to? They do not dare to appeal to the people not to pay taxes, as they would bring the power of the law upon them. So they ask them, in order to help create anarchy, to refuse to pay their private debts—debts contracted for services rendered."

Baltimore Archbishop Against 'Any Compromise'

Mexico City, Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—The Mexican Catholic Episcopate is flooded with cablegrams from Catholic leaders throughout the world, bidding the Mexican believers stand firm.

The Catholic Archbishop of Baltimore wired Archbishop Mora Y Del Rio as follows:

"Greetings. There can be no compromise. Sound reasoning in international law has demonstrated that property owned by church organizations should be protected by the government of the place where the head of the church resides. My heart is bleeding for the faithful."

GENERAL STRIKE NEAR IN ONE MEXICAN STATE

Mexico City, Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—A general strike will be called throughout the State of Porelos, Sept. 1, unless the arbitration board considering wage and working hours disputes hands down decisions agreeable to labor, union officials announced today.

DEMOCRATS TO QUOTE MELLON

Washington, Aug. 11 (Universal). —In an effort to dramatise the tariff issue, the Democratic National committee used the argument of Secretary Mellon, which dealt the death blow to the Haugen farm relief bill, to bolster up the Democratic contention that the Fordney-McCumber tariff law places a burden on the American consumers.

By substituting "tariff bill" for "farm bill" and making a few related changes in the now famous Mellon letter, as was suggested by Senator Borah of Idaho, during the debate in the Senate, the committee declared that it is "a smashing argument against the position of the dominant group of the party which Mr. Mellon represents."

Nyack, N. Y., Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—Comer S. Morgan of the Nyack Fire Department was in a dying condition today and Byron W. Church, an engineer, and Joseph Meo, twelve, were recovering from injuries received when the eighty-five-foot yacht Lavina blew up and sank here while its tanks were being filled with gasoline.

The yacht, which sank after a series of explosions, was owned by Wilson P. Forse, a wealthy sportsman who formerly was international amateur billiard champion.

"HEIR TO $9,000,000" MAKES ANOTHER GIFT

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 11 (A.P.)— Through the clouds of doubt which begin to shroud the mysterious $9,000,000 inheritance claimed by John Cooper, Kewanee iron worker, shines the faith of his fellow church members who are already laying plans for the $250,000 church he has promised them.

GASOLINE IN ALKY NOW TO FOIL BOOTLEGGERS

Washington, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Seeking to block continued diversion of industrial alcohol into booting channels the Treasury has ordered discontinuance of formula No. 7 in denaturing alcohol and directed that gasoline be poured into the quantities on hand.

WIFE CHOOSES JAIL TO TAXES

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 11 (A.P.).— Mrs. Anna Beck of Murrell, who would rather "stay in jail until doomsday" than pay a township tax of $6.83, was still a prisoner in county jail today although her tax has been paid.

Claiming women should not have to pay taxes, Mrs. Beck, mother of a year-old child, willingly went to prison last Sunday.

Last night a neighbor called at the tax collector's home and paid the necessary amount, but the jailor refused to release the woman, stating that under the law, the collector, who had placed Mrs. Beck in prison, must appear in person and sign her release.

The collector, it was learned, is visiting in another section of the State.

The little girl's arm was broken Sunday in Springfield and she was brought here to the hospital. Doctors are said to have told her father, Ernest Quillia of Oates street, that infection had set in and that only amputation could save her life.

TWICE-WED WOMAN OF 35 WINS YOUTH, 18

Parents of Brockton Lad Seek Lega Aid to Bak Proposed Marriage of Couple

The prospective marriage of Mrs. Linwood Braley, 35, an attractive Brockton widow, twice wed, and Ivan W. Oberton, her 18-year-old hired boy, struck a snag today, when Oberton's parents engaged counsel in an effort to block the issuance of a license.

Marriage intentions were filed in Cambridge by Mrs. Braley, who gave her address as No. 43 Essex street, that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Oberton of No. 29 Hope street, Brockton, parents of Ivan, contend that Mrs. Braley has been living at No. 24 Lawiston street, Brockton, where she conducts a small neighborhood store.

Oberton's age was given as twenty-one, while he is not yet nineteen, his parents say.

PARENTS BALK ROMANCE.

Mrs. Braley in the application papers said that she was a widow and that her second husband died last January, at the age of 65. Records at the Brockton City Hall show that Arthur H. Braley, 65, died at No. 24 Lewiston street, on January 6.

Oberton, according to his parents, went to work as a errd boy at Mrs. Braley's store, following the death of her husband in January. They have engaged Attorney Elven G. Towne of Brockton, who went to Cambridge today to confer with officials in an attempt to prevent a marriage license being issued.

Parental objection and the fact that Oberton is under age are arguments which will be used by Attorney Towne, it is believed.

Oberton's address was given as No. 7 Essex street, Cambridge, in the application papers. He is now living there.

MAX MITCHELL SEEKS TO MOVE SQUANTUM PLANT

WET SENATOR TALKS TO CATHOLIC DRYS

Washington, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—"No government, no temporal power, can win dominion in conscience, former United States Senator A. Owsley Stanley, Democrat, Kentucky, and avowed wet, told the Total Abstinence Union of America.

His speech was the result of friendship for the Rev. Peter J. O'Callaghan, president of the organization's principle that it should seek to win converts to abstinence from intoxicating liquor through education.

Senator Stanley emphasized the power of good example and personal abstinence as compared with an effort to enforce morality by legislation.

POLICE START IN HALL CASE

tectives assigned by Alexander Simpson, who is seeking to solve the murders of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, said:

"Police work will begin on the case today. Up to the present time no police work has been done. We have been going over the old investigation. My men are now ready to break the case wide open. We have enough evidence now to obtain an indictment from any fair minded grand jury."

Hayes and Simpson and their principal lieutenants in the investigation will first confer.

The Federal Government entered into one important phase of the inquiry. Army officers at Washington ordered the immediate return from California of Harry L. Dickman, a state trooper who disappeared while investigating the mystery four years ago. He has been located in a California army post.

His return may result in valuable information being given to Simpson. At the time he disappeared he was supposed to have solved the case and just before he left he is reported to have displayed large sums of money.

He is wanted here not only for what information he can give but on a charge of desertion from the State troopers and on a charge of robbing a post office.

Eleven persons were questioned by the investigators. One was Charlotte Mills, daughter of the slain woman. Charlotte was sixteen years old when the murders were committed. She is a young woman now, completely changed from the flapper she was during the first investigation.

In her story to the investigators she gave the lie to Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain rector, who is charged with the double murder.

Mrs. Hall has always maintained that she knew nothing of the clandestine love affair between her husband and Mrs. Mills.

Charlotte says Mrs. Hall knew all about it. After answering questions for two hours, Charlotte told reporters:

"Mrs. Hall knew everything about the relations between my mother and her husband. I know this because my mother told me she did. When mother was ill in the hospital, Dr. Hall said to his wife:

"'Frances, if anything happens to Eleanor, I am going to kill myself.'"

England Owes Us Nothing! Leave It to Will Rogers

London, Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—Will Rogers may be a diplomat in disguise.

The Daily Sketch says that at the end of Will Rogers' first week in Charles Cochrane's revue, Cochran was puzzled as to how much he should pay Rogers. Finally he sent Rogers a blank check.

Rogers took the check and tore it up, saying: "I am having a fine time here and everyone's mighty good. Why should I take your profits?"

It is felt this incident may alleviate the debt controversy.

SHOP FORBIDS BARE KNEES

Because the smile employes just could not make their eyes behave, consequently causing a noticeable slowing up in production of the plant, an order has been issued at the Forbes Lithograph Company in Revere, forbidding women employes to "roll their own," displaying dimpled or plain bare knees.

Naturally, the fair employes are piqued at the order and, as usual, put the blame on the men's shoulders. "If the men kept their eyes on their work everything would have been all right," was the consensus of feminine opinion.

Queen Mary Makes Up for "Snub" to Jane Cowl

London, Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—Queen Mary has patched things up with Jane Cowl, the American actress.

At the recent garden party in Buckinham Palace, it was reported that the Queen, in the rush of introductions and presentations, merely grasped Miss Cowl by the hand and passed her on, causing considerable comment.

The Marx, it is said, heard the reports that she had "snubbed" Miss Cowl, and so to offer reparation she and the King made one of their rare visits to the theatre to see Miss Cowl perform.

CAPTURE SLAYER OF N. Y. DETECTIVE

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Detective John Singer was shot and killed with his own pistol at police headquarters early today by Gene Pearce, a negro charged with automobile theft, who escaped but was recaptured.

SLIM SWAGGER SILHOUETTE THE STYLE

New York, Aug. 11.—The slim swagger silhouette prevailed for both coats and suits at the Fall fashion promenade of the National Garment Retailers' Association at the Hotel Commodore.

The exhibit included one hundred and forty creations by forty-one of the leading stylists in the wholesale women's apparel trade. Eighteen hundred retailers and manufacturers representative of all sections of the country were present.

F. A. O'Connor of the E. T. Slattery Company, vice-president of the association, headed the representatives of the leading Boston stores.

TOUCHES OF FULNESS.

While the straightline silhouette held away there were many touches of fulness contributed chiefly by the use of the bolero and the bloused back on both coats and dresses. Two-piece dresses took most honors in evidence. Many tiered skirt models were shown.

A new color, neptune, a light water green, predominated. It was one of four new shades sponsored for Fall by the National Garment Retailers' Association. The others were romance, a rose coral; autumn, a golden brown, and gypsy, a deep wine shade.

Many tailored dresses were displayed, indicating a vogue for these for Fall. They had high collars and were cut along jaunty, youthful lines. Both coats and dresses favored the dolman and viormost sleeve. Afternoon frocks were trimmed with fringes, embroidery braids and buttons, while embellishments for evening wear ran largely to rhinestones. Metallic cloths in combination with velvet fashioned the evening gowns.

ENSEMBLE GOWNS.

A number of ensemble gowns for evening as well as afternoon wear were shown. Natural furs were lavishly employed as coat trimming, including lynx, fox, wolf, mink, ermine, beaver and squirrel.

Skirt lengths were virtually the same as those of the Spring and Summer season, twelve inches from the ground. Evening dresses were slightly longer. The leading fabrics were rodier chevrolty woolens for coats and kasha and metal cloths. Outside of the four new colors brought out by the National Garment Retailers' Association, black and navy Red were featured.

BODY IN RIVER NOT THAT OF W. S. WARD

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Ralph Ward announced today that the body found in the Hudson River, off Piermont, yesterday could not be that of his brother, Walter S. Ward, as the drowned man was only five feet eight inches tall, whereas the son of the baking materials measured more than six feet.

State troopers began an investigation when it was said that the appearance of the drowned man was similar to that of Ward, who has been missing for three months.

Von Stroheim to Film "Follies" Story

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—Eric Von Stroheim is actually to film an American story. And when I say it is Florenz Ziegfeld's "Glorifying the American Girl," you will see it is truly American. Her charm, loveliness and appeal is the theme and Von Stroheim should be able to do for the screen what Ziegfeld has done all these years for the stage. Equally interesting is the choice of Gilda Gray as the American beauty.

Before he attempts to describe the Ziegfeld idea, Von Stroheim will consult with the man who "Glorified the American Girl." If Ziegfeld finds he cannot leave his revue and his Broadway, Von Stroheim will go East.

Gilda Gray.

My first information concerning "Glorifying the American Girl" gave Fay Wray the leading role. Miss Wray is the girl Von Stroheim chose for Mitzi in "The Wedding March," and she has only recently signed a contract with Famous Players-Lasky.

Later I was told Miss Gray, once a "Follies" girl, would bring something of her own career to the screen. Miss Gray first came into fame as an exponent of the shimmy in the 1922 edition of the Ziegfeld Follies.

Since she will make personal appearances with whatever picture she makes next, it is needless to comment on the exploitation value of "Glorifying the American Girl."

And of course, it will be produced in New York. What is more fitting than to have the locale lair in the home of the "Follies."

GRETA GARBO AND JACK GILBERT will not be seen together in "The Flesh and the Devil." This, I realize, is a blow to fans all over the country who have longed to see the team of Gilbert and Garbo in a picture, directed by the capable Clarence Brown.

Just what happened, no one at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer seems willing to say, and why should I, in the face of this, hazard a guess. I do know that Miss Garbo took her make-up box, walked out of the studio and announced she would not be back. Production did not stop on the picture, it never does in cases like this.

Greta Garbo.

Clarence Brown, who refused to let the loss of his leading woman cause him any sleepless nights, at once instituted a search for some one to play opposite Gilbert. A test of Betty Compson is so promising it looks very much as if she will be given the role left vacant by the desertion of the Swedish actress.

FATE DOES QUEER THINGS in the movies. Here we have May Allison, who traveled all the way across the continent to play a role in Milton Sills' picture accepting an offer from the Fox Company to make two pictures on the Fox lot.

I believe I mentioned that May refused the Sills' picture after she read the script and learned that the part was not suitable. She made no further engagements until she was invited to play the role of "Linda" in A. S. M. Hutchinson's "One Increasing Purpose," and in "The City."

She had thought at first she would go abroad with Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Lowe and Lila Lee, but it has now been decided that she will work in "The City," while the other members of the "One Increasing Purpose" cast are in Europe.

WARNER BROTHERS HAVE PURCHASED the Great Drury Lane melodrama, "The Greaty Drury," as a special feature for 1927. While no cast has been named, I have an idea all of the Warner talent will be represented.

And now I wonder if we will have more melodramas of that calibre, for it seems to me one of the best things they do in the movies is to follow the leader.

CLEMENCEAU IS UNJUST TO U.S., SAYS BORAH

Boise Idaho, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, has issued a statement in response to inquiries regarding his opinion of the open letter from Georges Clemenceau, wartime premier of France, to President Coolidge.

The Clemenceau letter contained an appeal not to treat the settlement of the French debt as a commercial matter. Clemenceau declared the proposed Berenger-Mellon debt agreement to be impossible of fulfillment and that it threatened the independence of France.

CRUELLY MISLEADING.

In his statement Senator Borah said:

"Clemenceau's letter is so cruelly misleading as in his intimation that we are undermining the independence of France, and so deliberately unjust where he refers to waiting for America to enter the war, and where he criticises the United States for making a separate treaty of peace with Germany, and yet so pathetic in manifest love of his country, that I prefer not to comment at length.

"He is one whose unfounded wrath we can afford to ignore and whose malicious insinuations we can afford to pass by.

"It would seem that if they have anything to say of a people whom they once hailed as their unselfish deliverers they at least should speak the language of truth and graciousness.

"The statement that we are trying to undermine the independence of France, or that somebody wants to buy France, approaches the absurd.

MIGHT CANCEL ALL.

"If they want to cancel their debts let them include all debts and all reparations and show that benefit of the cancellation will go to humanity and to betterment of the masses of Europe and not to the benefit of the imperialistic schemes which are now crushing the life out of people who were in no sense responsible for this war."

"This constant charge of injustice and usury on the part of the United States is simply not only unfounded in fact, but dishonest in purpose."

25 Meteors Seen by Naval Observer in Washington

Washington, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Approximately 25 meteors in the annual shower from the constellation of Perseus were seen between 11:30 last night and 2:45 a. m. today at the Naval Observatory by Commander Asaph Hall, U. S. N., astronomer at the observatory.

The shower, in the northeast heavens, was described by Professor Hall as being distinguished by yellowish streaks.

The meteors are believed to be parts of a broken-up comet and are sometimes referred to as "the tears of St. Lawrence," in commemoration of the anniversary of that saint's martyrdom.

GIRL'S SLAYER FOUND, SAY POLICE

Seattle, Aug. 11.—Aug. 11.—The trial of Wallace G. Gaines, charged with murder of his daughter Sylvia, Smith College girl, and resident of Lynnfield, Mass., was featured today by the statement of Acting Chief of Police William Kent that he believed the girl's slayer was under arrest at San Bernardino, Calif.

The man in question is Philip H. Brown, brought from Needles to San Bernardino by Sheriff W. A. Shay, after making an alleged confession that he strangled or attacked twelve women in California.

Acting Chief Kent said he was convinced from a description of Brown that he is the man who attacked and killed Miss Gaines, who was making a visit to her father from whom her mother had been separated some years.

Brown was arrested in Needles August 8 by a Santa Fe Railroad officer and sentenced to ten days in the city jail for trespassing.

Quick Quizzes on Movies

By BARBARA BENTON.

L. H. D., JAMAICA PLAIN—Emil Jannings' next appearance on a Boston screen will be in a German made film, "Variety," due at the Metropolitan very shortly. He has been signed by Paramount to make a series of pictures under their direction and these will be released before the year is out.

O. P. R., BOSTON—You win the bet. Tom Moore was born in Ireland, County Meath is the place, I believe. He is five feet, ten inches tall, has brown hair and light blue eyes.

S. T. G., BOSTON—Corinne Griffith's next picture to be released is "Syncopation Sue," having something to do with the adventures of a girl pianist in that section of New York known as "Tin Pan Alley"—a place where most popular tunes are born.

E. S. F., HAVERHILL—Valentino's next picture is a sequel to "The Sheik." It is called "The Son of the Sheik," so you know what to expect. Vilma Banky is his leading lady.

NEW MOVIE COLOR PROCESS MAKING

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Development fo a new process for making motion pictures in color is under way in the Eastern Kodak Co. laboratories here, it was made public today. Robert T. Flaherty, motion picture producer, is engaged in a series of experiments with what is known as "kodachrome." He will put the process to practical test in a motion picture to be made in New York City.

Maude Adams has been working with Flaherty and laboratory experts here in experiments. Flaherty said today a scenario had been written especially for the process, the story relating to the making of stained glass by Monks centuries ago. The climax is the showing of a stained glass window, now in New York City, which will be photographed for reproduction in color.

At least two months will be needed to complete experiments, it was said.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Brown Leaflets Tell Society How to Go to Stillington Hall

INTERESTING LITTLE brown leaflets with a small plan showing "How to Get to Stillington Hall" have gone out to the North Shore smart world from the busy workrooms at Stillington, Leslie Buswell's magnificent Gloucester estate.

BY WAY OF A WINDING road through lovely Ravenswood Park, on the motor highway between Gloucester and Magnolia, the leaflets show a pleasant approach to Stillington Hall, where, on August 19 and for five evenings thereafter, the Stillington Players take the boards.

THE NORTH SHORE set is quite agog over Mr. Buswell's enthusiastic plan to revive dramatics in that section, and eventually to inaugurate a series of musicales—in fact to have drama and music take the important place these arts should occupy in North Shore Summer life.

MISS GRACE MONKS of Manchester, mistress of pretty little Edgewood Bookshop, is a business aid, along with Miss Atwater, in the multiple details of tickets and reservations for the six "Stillington Players" performances.

AND DIRECTING HEAD of the whole stupendous accomplishment, Mr. Buswell, owner of beautiful Stillington, set high on its Gloucester hilltop. Each day sees his dream of a home for a revived little theatre taking form and shape.

AFTER AN INTERLUDE at their ancestral home in Florence, Miss Gloria and Miss Francesca Braggiotti arrive today on the Conte Rosso, and at once take up their busy schedule in preparation for Winter.

SIX WEEKS' STUDY of dancing in New York is Miss Francesca's plan, preliminary to a Boston return and arduous rehearsals for the character "Salome." in "John the Baptist," which this talented young dancer will portray at its Boston opening.

SARATOGA AND ITS brilliant race season is, as usual, the resort claiming Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, 2nd, during August. Mrs. Vanderbilt came down from the New York Spa in her private car, Advance, and returned thither via the same luxurious mode of travel.

MISS JESSIE BANCROFT
Boston society girl, an expert horsewoman, is helping arrange the Cohasset Legion Horse Show on August 20.

DURING HER WEEK-END stay in Newport, Mrs. Vanderbilt was house guest at the new Frederick Cameron Church, Jr., menage, presided over by the handsome and popular Mrs. Church, whom Newporters, of the upper and lower strata, admired and loved as Muriel Vanderbilt.

QUALIFIED MEMBERS of the Newport Country Club may enter, in September, in the annual competition for the cup presented some years ago by the Count Di Turin, cousin of Italy's King, Victor Emanuel.

A PERPETUAL TROPHY, the cup has each year engraved upon it the name of the winner, to whom goes a gold medal denoting victory. Already it contains a distinguished role of victors.

ROBERT CLEAVES is a guest in the Ontario Lake of Bays country, having registered at the Bigwin Inn, Bigwin Island, in that land of magnificent scenery and distances.

Drag Lake for Body

Ashburnham, Aug. 11.—Chief of Police Elmer W. Russell, with a sound of officers, today dragged Naukeag Lake for the body of a man believed to have been Stephen Simonds, missing several days from the Gardner insane colony. Cottagers reported they saw a man disappear after crying for help.

TEN TO DIE FOR 100 MURDERS

Tyumen, Siberia, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Ten desperadoes were sentenced to death here today for the murder of more than 100 victims. Chief among the condemned was the notorious woman bandit, Ekaterina Fishiakova, wife of the leader of the gang, who himself was known as the intimidated peasantry as "the Jack the Ripper of the Ural Mountains." The woman was accused of killing her victims with an axe.

The robbers had been organized into a strong band of several score with rigid rules, the slightest infraction of which was punishment with death. For two years the district had been terrorized by the criminals, who are accused of killing whole families. They attacked government warehouses, strangling the guards and seizing stores of vodka and textiles, which they sold at great profit.

The crimes of these robbers and of others who emulated them grew so frequent and so bold that the Soviet Minister of Internal Affairs sent a commission to Tyumen with forces strong enough to restore order.

French Ace Cries at Photo of Self in Suspenders

Roosevelt Field, L. I., Aug. 11.—A recently published picture showing Rene Fonck standing in front of the biplane he will attempt to fly across the Atlantic, with his coat off and his suspenders bared to the world, has distressed the war flier exceedingly, according to information obtained here.

The noted French "ace" is unusually particular about his appearance and the publication of the picture is said to have caused him to shed genuine tears.

FIST FIGHTS IN SESSION

Paris, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Premier Poincare has completed, with rapidity rarely, if ever, equalled in the third Republic, his financial program for rehabilitation of France as far as politically possible.

The national assembly in session at versailles by a vote of 671 to 144 passed the provision for a sinking fund in the constitution to amortize the country's floating debt.

Fist fights between members of the extreme right and extreme left occurred and the session was twice suspended. The Communists banged desks and hurled insults at M. De Selves. They also sang the International. One deputy was expelled.

NINE BODIES ON SABLE ISLAND

Halifax, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Twenty-six members of the crew of the auxiliary fishing schooner Sylvia Mosher are believed to have perished when the craft was piled up, a total loss, on the north side of Sable Island during a hurricane last Saturday.

Captain John Mosher, 25 years old and married, is among the missing. It is said that nine bodies and several dories have been washed ashore on Sable Island. All the members of the crew were Nova Scotians.

All kinds of jobs and positions are waiting for Classified Ad Seekers.

TRUCK HITS TREE, POLE, DRIVER IS SLEEPING

Lunenberg, Aug. 11.—Twelve-year-old Elsie Heimo of Westminster and Emil Morsio of No. 53 Pine street, Gardner, were seriously injured today when the truck in which they were riding crashed into a telephone pole and a tree after Morsio, the driver, had fallen asleep.

A passing autoist rushed the victims to the Burbank Hospital in Fitchburg, where Morsio was found to have sustained body injuries and cuts on the legs, and the girl was cut on the face and head.

DEAF MUTES 'HEAR' SONG AND DANCE TO VIBRATIONS

Washington, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—The silent convention of 2,000 delegates of the National Association of the Deaf, some of whom can speak or hear, today "heard" a song written for the occasion. With only rhythm and without music it is "Washington 1926," composed by J. Frederick Meagher, a young member and a newspaper man of Chicago.

On the steps of the Lincoln Memorial the Gettysburg address was given in sign language by the Rev. F. C. Smielau of Pennsylvania.

The delegates also danced with almost faultless rhythm to music communicated through vibrations in a ballroom floor.

President Arthur L. Roberts reported success in having laws discriminatory against the deaf repealed in Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and to block the Wisconsin eugenics bill which would have forbidden marriage of the deaf and speechless.

He criticized New Hampshire for not removing restrictions which prevent mutes from receiving automobile permits.

BIG OUTPUT BY GRAHAM BROS.

A total of 19,466 trucks and motor coaches was built by the Graham Brothers in their four factories in the United States and Canada during the first half of 1926. This figure nearly doubles the record of 10,447 units built during the corresponding period last year.

During the second quarter of the present year, 11,646 units were produced, making a gain of 44.3 per cent. over the first quarter. The record of the second quarter this year, compared with the second quarter last year, shows a gain of 105.8 per cent.

"Graham Brothers, the truck division of Dodge Brothers, Inc. in the short period of five years has risen to first rank in the industry in manufacture of 1½-ton trucks and second in the 1 and 1½-ton field combined," said C. S. Henshaw Boston dealer.

"Comparison of Graham Brothers growth with that of the industry shows clearly the profound reason with which the public regards these sturdy trucks. Total production of American trucks of all makes in 1921, when Graham Brothers entered the field, was 54.2 per cent. less than in 1920. In 1922 it was 21.5 per cent. less than in 1920. In 1923 the industry ran 219 per cent. ahead of its 1920 figures. In 1924 it was 16.2 per cent. ahead of 1920. The 1925 production was 55.5 per cent. ahead of 1920 or 33 per cent. ahead of 1924. The average annual increase in Graham Brothers sales has been over 100 per cent. Their 1922 sales exceeded their 1921 by 213 per cent.; 1923 exceeded 1922 by 106 per cent.; 1924 exceeded 1923 by 54 per cent., 1925 sales exceeded 1924 by 123 per cent. Now sales this year are nearly double those of last.

"Figures released by the U. S. Department of Commerce, the latest available, show a production in the United States and Canada of 226,937 trucks during the first five months of this year, a gain of 25,624 or 12.6 per cent. over the output during the first five months last year. This percentage should be little changed by the addition of the figures for June. Against the industry's gain of 12.6 per cent. over last year Graham Brothers gain of 105.3 per cent. for the second quarter this year compared with the second quarter last year stands out, prominently."

CHRYSLER SALE INCREASES

Sweeping ahead of 1925 production records the Chrysler Corporation delivered 81,887 cars to the public during the first six months of 1926. During the same period last year the delivery total was 68,350. These figures are contained in the report of Walter P. Chrysler, president of the Chrysler Corporation.

Retail sales have been stimulated by the introduction of the "70," according to officials of the C. E. Fay Company, distributors of the Chrysler Car in New England territory. The demand has been so great, that production of this one model alone has been increased to 500 a day.

Mr. Chrysler in his report said: "The factories in Detroit have on hand more than 80,000 orders from distributors for the '70,' a new, light four cylinder car which will be put into production next month. This new car will be low, very smart in appearance, will do in excess of 50 miles an hour.

STUNTS SHOW OFF HUPMOBILE

A "Demonstration Fortnight" during which the public is invited to visit Hupmobile show rooms to see the new straight eight and to go out for a drive, has been announced by the Hupp Motor Car Corporation.

Appointments for drives may be arranged with salesmen and cars will be sent to the doors of those who apply for demonstrations.

Special emphasis is placed on the "without obligation to buy" feature, according to C. E. Jeffrey, head of the Hupmobile Company of New England. No persistent solicitations will follow demonstrations.

For those who do not wish to drive themselves but desire the salesman to chauffeur for them a series of novel "stunts" have been arranged which are very interesting and show the surprising flexibility and performance of the straight eight motor.

"Cars will be started without the usual starter pedal, low curbs mounted in high gear with the motor scarcely revolving; with the speedometer masked the occupants will be asked to guess the speed; these and other performance tests have been arranged to make the demonstration ride more than ordinarily entertaining.

"There are several important chassis and body features which we have perfected in this eight which were never found on a car in this price class and we are desirous of informing the motorist of what he can expect from his investment," says Mr. Jeffrey.

"The Hupmobile straight eight, introduced late last year, led the way toward a reduction of prices in the fine car field. We have, through experience of the last nineteen years and our study of present day motor demands designed a motor that brings for the first time the highest quality performance down to the price limit of the medium car buyer. It is the shortest, most compact eight in line motor ever built. The uncanny quietness of the motor, its breathless pick-up, hill-climbing ability and unusual gasoline and oil economy have merited this car world-wide popularity."

OVERLAND HAS SALES DRIVE

The largest production schedule in the history of the organization, has been launched by the Willys-Overland Company, simultaneously with the introduction of the Overland Whippet, the European type of light car which has already been shown to 14,000,000 in the first three weeks it has been on display.

According to Herbert G. Fitch, district manager for New England, retail sales of the Whippet have exceeded all expectations and at the present time are reported to be running at a rate approximately double that of the production schedule.

The Overland Six showed a 73 per cent. increase over June of last year with the July figures promising to exceed this large percentage when compared with sales for the same month last year.

In the Willys-Knight line, the sales gain is better than 40 per cent. over last year, with production schedules on the Model Seventy reaching new records while the production of the Great Six is far ahead of last year's figures.

During 1925, Willy-Overland delivered 221,000 cars to owners throughout the country. Production at the present time indicates that the close of this year will show a large increase over last year.

STUTZ POPULAR IN BRITAIN

The New Safety Stutz is making inroads in the British market. This was indicated by a cablegram from F. E. Moskovics, Stutz president, who is now in Europe, to the effect that Warwick Wright, a leading car distributor, has been signed as a Stutz distributor in England.

Wright is known throughout the British Isles and Continental Europe as a car distributor, and is one of the three largest distributors in England. Wright's initial Stutz order was for three cars to be shipped immediately.

The Boston Stutz Company is under the personal supervision of Edward Becker, a pioneer in the automobile industry.

PONTIAC SETS NEW RECORD

Another record was hung up by the Pontiac Six Coach when a stock coach covered 993 miles between El Paso, Texas, and Los Angeles in 21 hours and 18 minutes, an average of 46.61 miles an hour.

This run, according to Frank Brown, general manager of the Oakland Company of New England, not only clipped five hours and 50 minutes off the previous record made by an open car, but beat the fast Golden State Limited train by two hours and two minutes. The Pontiac Six exceeded the best previous time record over roads between the two points, except by airplane.

This is the second achievement of the Pontiac Six within a month.

Less than a month ago a Pontiac Six broke the motor car time record from Los Angeles to Albuquerque, N. M., and established a new round trip record. Both runs were put on by Reeve Gartmann, Inc., Oakland-Pontiac dealer at Los Angeles and both were officially timed by Western Union.

The Pontiac which made the latest run was driven by Harry Neville and A. L. Peterson, each alternating at the wheel. The run was over rugged mountains, in places extending a mile high, and across desert country 250 feet below sea level. The drivers express the opinion that the 993 mile drive at the speed of 46.61 miles an hour gave more abuse to a car than an owner would give it in driving more than 25,000 miles in a year.

GERMANS SPLIT ON NATAL DAY

By S. DUNBAR WEYER
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, Aug. 11.—Part of the German nation — numerically indeterminable, but indicated by the recent plebiscite result—is today celebrating the seventh anniversary of the signing of the Republican Constitution.

The other part of the nation stands by sullenly, blaming all the ills of the present day and all changes from the glory of the Empire on the Republicans.

It is necessary for the sake of proper understanding of the German nation to point out that those who are not joining in the celebration are by no means all monarchists or black reactionaries.

Germany is simply divided into a right and a left. All that is left is identified with the Republic. All that is right, however, doesn't want Kaiserism back—certainly not Willelm.

The right is considerably annoyed that President Hindenburg, with the entire Cabinet, attended celebrations at noonday in the Reichstag, and later the President inspected the Reichswehr guard of honor in front of the Reichstag, while huge crowds gathered and sang "Deutschland Uber Alles."

Washington, Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—World War veterans today were warned there is no advantage in coming to Washington to attempt to obtain adjudication of claims under the recent amendments to the act of Congress governing the Veterans Bureau. These claims should be presented at the regional office of the Bureau covering the veteran's home town.

THERE IS NO SATURATION POINT FOR HONEST VALUE

Honest value is a priceless commodity. Every purchaser seeks it, but not always with complete success.

During periods of careful buying he takes unusual pains to find it, and products of inferior merit fail to attract his patronage.

Reports then circulate that the "saturation point" in the automobile market has been reached, when in reality there will NEVER be a saturation point for honest value.

During the first six months of this year, for instance, Dodge Brothers sold 207,115 motor cars and trucks. This represents a gain of 49.3 per cent. over the first six months of 1925, and continues Dodge Brothers in the enviable position of THIRD IN THE INDUSTRY.

From June 24th to August 1st 41,866 Motor Cars and Trucks were delivered to customers in the United States—an increase of 80% over the five weeks ending August 1, 1925, and impressive evidence that Dodge Brothers great sales gain is continuing through the quiet weeks of midsummer.

The more carefully people investigate and compare, detail by detail, the factors that constitute genuine motor car value, the more inevitably Dodge Brothers market expands and will continue to expand, year after year.

HOOVER TO VISIT COOLIDGE

Paul Smith's, N. Y., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Visitors to White Pine Camp, where President Coolidge today completed the fifth week of his Adirondack vacation, are expected to be more numerous as the Chief Executive enters what is roughly the last half of his sojourn.

Secretary Dwight Davis of the War Department and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur have been guests and on Friday Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, arrives to consult Mr. Coolidge.

Attorney-General Sargent, whom the Chief Executive saw last week in Vermont, may come later.

Brigadier-General Lord, director of the budget, arriving today with the preliminary estimates, and Arthur M. Ruhe, an expert in co-operative farming and marketing, also had an engagement with the President.

Captain Wilson Brown, Jr., commander of the Presidential yacht Mayflower and naval aide to the President, returns to Washington today with Mrs. Brown.

Mr. A of Blackmail Fame Guest at Insect Dance

London, Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—The Maharajah of Kashmir, better known as Sir Hari Singh, the central figure in the famous "Mr. A" blackmail case, recently attended a dance given by Sir John and Lady Wood at Gulmarg, India, which was "for girls and bachelors only," and was an "Insect Dance," at which all the guests appeared in insect costumes.

It was at a costume ball that Sir Hari first met Mrs. Maud Robinson, who was attired as a "grasshopper." The acquaintance led to Sir Hari and Mrs. Robinson being surprised in a Paris hotel, later leading to the blackmail charges.

BYRD TO DIRECT FLIGHT FROM AMERICA TO PARIS

Commander Richard E. Byrd, polar flight hero, now Summering in Waltham, today expressed his delight at being chosen chairman of the committee in charge of the flight from America to Paris in the huge Sikorsky biplane. In a telegram to Colonel N. E. Hartney at Mineola N. Y., Commander Byrd said: "I have long been a proponent of such a flight. Believe your chances are more than excellent."

The polar flight hero will leave for New York in a short time to join the other members of committee, Major Reed Chambers, H. Clay Ferguson and W. C. Ruxton.

LAW FOILED BY GRIM REAPER

When Frederick Altri, thirty-one, of Marginal street, East Boston, failed to appear in East Boston Court today to answer charges of engaging in an affray and disturbing the peace, officers, armed with a default warrant, went to his home, where they found him dead in bed. Death was due, it is believed to natural causes.

Altri's wife, Julia, met the officers when they entered the house. Sobbing bitterly, she could only point to a door leading from the kitchen. The police entered the room and found Altri's lifeless body in the bed. They reported to the court and Judge Joseph H. Barnes dismissed the charges. The medical examiner was summoned.

PYTHIANS DEBATE ON QUESTION OF CHARITY

Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Whether the Pythians will unite their charity in enterprises at home or abroad has become a major issue of the thirty-fourth biennial assembly of the Supreme Lodge of the Knights of Pythias, in session here.

The proposals are for the establishment of a tuberculosis institution in the United States and for participation in the work of the Culion leper colony in the Philippines.

O'BRIEN SEEKS NOMINATION

Presenting his record of administration as sufficient argument for re-election, District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien today formally announced his entry into the field for nomination to the office of prosecutor for Suffolk County.

O'Brien declares that when he took office, four years ago, he was confronted with an array of "professional politicians" and corrupt lawyers. In his term of administration, he states that he "drove them out," and "kept them out."

For the conduct of his office, O'Brien says:

"In December of 1925, as a result of repeated attacks on the conduct of my office, the Attorney-General, at my request, with the aid of eighty attorneys of all races, creeds, and political faiths, surveyed some 600 cases, and in no single instance found evidence of corruption. So much for integrity."

POINTS TO ACHIEVEMENTS.

His achievements in cleaning up unscrupulous tradesmen, drug peddlers, gunmen, and other varieties of criminals form the introduction of a campaign, in which O'Brien further declares:

"I have fought the sinister power of the professional politicians in the Superior Court, and have driven them out of the district attorney's office, and I have curbed their operations in the district courts.

"I have prosecuted, and will continue to prosecute those traitors to the public welfare, police officers of this county, who yield to corrupt influences and who are a disgrace and source of shame to their honest brother officers, and a terrifying menace to the community.

SAVE THE CHILD.

"My motto has been 'Save and not shame the child.' By substituting wise and patient treatment for shame and punishment, ninety per cent. of the juvenile offenders have been saved to the community. This treatment of the juvenile offender has met with universal approval.

"These are some of my achievements. Their accomplishment has made powerful enmities. But no man can administer the great office of district attorney in accordance with his oath and not make enemies.

"The people's candidate, I am put forward by the bosses neither of the Republican nor the Democratic parties. My campaign will not be waged for the purpose of furthering the aspirations of candidates for Governor or U. S. Senator, in either the Republican or Democratic parties."

LEOPARD STILL FREE, CHIMPANZEE CAUGHT

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—That terrible leopard, which for a week has sent the New Jersey countryside shivering to its beds, was playing a bone hand, or rather paw, once more today as a result of the speedy capture of a chimpanzee that had thought to join its jungle mate in a revolt against the conventions of human kind.

The chimpanzee, unable to change his spots, was under a handicap and was captured here today in the unromantic folds of a dog catcher's net, after an overnight absence. The animal, owned by Leon Shisler, ran away when stoned by small boys.

The Taxi Dancer by Robert Terry Shannon

A Thrilling Story of Night Life and Night Clubs; a Mad Whirl of Adventure

"You'll need me," Brierhalter said to Joslyn as he left her

Joslyn Poe, daughter of a proud, but impoverished Virginia family, wants a career, not marriage. Her mother wants her to wed. The wild blood of a line of daring women runs in her veins. She wants adventure. A seeress tells her of the "wildness" in her blood. She goes to a dance. She determines she will settle her problem that night—to marry George Ransom, well-to-do, but no dandy, or—go to New York in seek of adventure. She meets a stranger at the dance.

Milton Stein, the stranger, advises Joslyn to go to the city and to dance. Joslyn, hungry and discouraged, is heard weeping by Kittie Lane, a manicurist. Kittie gets Lee Rogers, a friend, to invite them to dinner.

While the girls are at the table with Rogers, James Kelvin, movie star, attempts to cultivate Joslyn's acquaintance. There is a near row with Rogers. Kelvin goes away leaving with Joslyn a sense of some strange influence over her. A few days afterward Kittie is brought home blind from bad booze. Joslyn rushes to Stein's Academy to take a job as a "Taxi Dancer" to care for Kittie. In the academy she meets Stephen Bates, a man-about-town, who offers to go to Kittie's help.

Kittie's life and sight are saved by the doctors secured by Bates. They both go to a party at Bates'. Kelvin is there. He kills Bates in a quarrel.

Kittie saves Joslyn by telling the police that the death row was over her.

With Kelvin hiding in her apartment Joslyn is called by the district attorney. She beats him. Police watch her flat.

Great luck comes to Joslyn. She is offered $250 per week as a dancer. Brierhalter asks her not to accept and offers her $500.

CHAPTER XXI

BEFORE Joslyn's confusion passed, the Brierhalter chauffeur had helped her into the car and was standing attentively for the destination.

Joslyn looked at Brierhalter, her eyes flashing chagrin and surprise. He smiled at her content with quiet satisfaction. "Would you like to drive somewhere for tea?" he suggested, with a casual, proprietary tone.

"I would not," she said with a sharpness that had more of confusion than anger.

He spoke to the driver. "All right, Higgs. Drive over to the avenue and through the park." When the man had started the machine and was out of earshot, Brierhalter turned to her puzzled.

"From your very pleasant manner when you telephoned me I am a little bit surprised at your unapproachableness. Is the idea of driving somewhere for tea particularly offensive?"

"Not exactly," Joslyn remarked coldly. "Not half as much as the eagerness with which you seemed to—I believe I meant what — well, what I implied over the telephone."

"Why shouldn't I have taken you at your word?" he demanded with considerable energy. "Am I to un-

STALIN IS ANGERED AT 'TALK'

"The only truthful report that has come to my attention is that Zinoviev has been dropped."

The above is extracted from an interview sent out by American Service early Monday night with Alexis Dupont, head of the Soviet commercial agency in this country and Russia's semi-official spokesman in this country.

This statement makes highly important the following report of a speech by Stalin in attacking Zinoviev and Trotzky. The speech was delivered about July 1 to the Central Committee.

By JOSEPH STALIN,
In His Moscow Speech

(Copyright 1926 by Universal Service.)

In addition to our, at times I myself feel almost insurmountable difficulties in directing the affairs of Soviet Russia, our efforts are constantly thwarted by opposition theorists, theorists who take the time of our conferences with destructive criticism but no remedy; theorists who have great programs on paper, but illusory; critics who are constantly pointing out past mistakes but never giving us credit for the work accomplished.

ALIENATED WORLD

These persons not only tend to divide the party unity, but their criticism to the outside world.

These people are assisting to retard our advance. Unintentionally they are not as dangerous as the leader of the Left Opposition, Comrade Trotzky, who has his finger at Zinoviev's throat whose treasonable utterances are broadcast as representing Soviet Russia's frame of mind.

That person (still pointing his finger at Zinoviev) has attached a sympathy of every socialist (Stalin laughs) in the world.

We know Russia, and he does not know the Russian and our revolution was successful.

But did we know the mind of the American proletariat?

Did we know the mind of the English workingman?

We did not.

But thanks to that person (meaning at Zinoviev), we have learned consideration of the attitude of the working class in [illegible] country. And that attitude is against war.

Polarity of Phones

All good telephones have a colored cord to designate polarity. They will give louder signals when connected properly. The red or brown tip (the regular cord has a red or brown strand in it) should go to the positive from the "B" battery and the other cord to the other contact. The majority of sets are marked PLUS on the loud speaker terminals.

NAME STAR AND PICTURE.

The contestant will be required to "name the star whose face is missing" and "name the picture play from which the scene is taken."

Then he will write a letter, not more than 300 words long, on "Why I Like the Movies."

And that tells all!

At the close of the contest, the contestant will send in his complete set of 20 answers, together with his letter on "Why I Like the Movies," and then the prizes will be awarded, in two batches.

First will come the "local" awards, to be given only to those who have taken part in the contest through the Boston Evening American.

LOCAL PRIZES.

The local, or New England contest, will be decided by Judges to be selected by the Managing Editor of the Boston Evening American, and after the local prizes have been awarded, the best 25 sets in the Boston Evening American contest will be forwarded to New York, to compete for the National awards with "Best 25's" from other cities, all cuts in of New England.

Among the strictly local prizes, which MUST be won in and will WILL be won by persons taking part in the contest through this newspaper, are the Tour of the Mediterranean for two persons, $500 in gold, $200, $100, and lesser cash prizes, a Freshman Masterpiece Console Radio, a library of 50 Grosset & Dunlap photoplay edition of popular novels, and many Boston Evening American "courtesy cards," good for admission to New England motion picture theatres for two persons for over a year.

TO PUBLISH CLUES.

These managers believe, with Mr Will H. Hays and his associates, that a Greater Movie Season is almost upon us. Note the names of the theatres which will be printed daily beginning on the coming Monday, observes their lively interest in Greater Movie Season and, as opportunity presents itself, do what you can to promote a Greater Movie Season for them.

Those who take part in the Greater Movie Season Contest will find a number of printed helps in the paper, every day.

Clues will be printed under each Contest Picture. A list of 80 titles of motion-picture plays will be found in the Boston Evening American, as well as a list of 80 prominent motion-picture stars. In these lists can be found the titles of the 20 picture-plays and the names of the 20 stars which form the meat of the contest.

The Soul of the salad

Just as the dressing is the soul of the salad, so the vinegar is the soul of the dressing.

Vinegar, at its best, should be more than simply a sour taste—it should be flavor, so that it will not only impart a goodness of its own, but also bring out the fine flavor of every food it touches.

Heinz Vinegars are flavor because they are made from the finest ingredients and then aged naturally for over a year in wood. Long aging gives them a mellowness, aroma and body which quickly prepared vinegar cannot have. You cannot hurry good vinegar along.

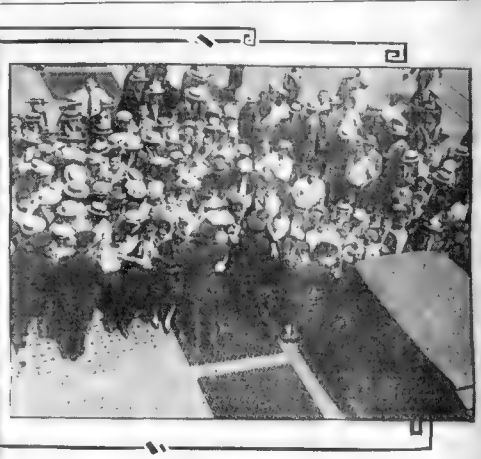
AFTER THE BATTLE

Tex Rickard and Jack Dempsey shown leaving the office of the Boxing Commission after Jack's license had been deferred by Colonel Phelan. One phase of the Dempsey-Wills-Tunney-Commission-License Board maelstrom.

BEFORE THE BATTLE

Jack meets Gene Tunney in the ante-room of the commission office, when they both arrived to seek licenses in order that they may legally swing at each other in a New York ring. They are talking in over.



DURING THE BATTLE

All during the conferences in the Flatiron Building, a large crowd furnished trouble for the police in its effort to glimpse the principals as they went to and from the building. The bluecoats are shown trying to hold back the enthusiastic fans. (Photos by I.N.R.)

DELAY HITS AT LICENSE FOR CHAMP

Commission Plans Final Consideration of Application at Special Meeting Tomorrow

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I.N.S. Sports Editor

New York Aug. 11—The boxing commission and license committee will consider the application of Jack Dempsey heavyweight champion, for a license to fight Gene Tunney, at a special meeting which has been called for 10:30 Thursday morning.

George R. Brower, commission secretary, informed the International News Service today, of the postponement.

It is within the power of any member of the commission to call a special meeting when business warrants it, said Mr. Brower. Tex Rickard has been notified to be present.

Tex Rickard and Jack Dempsey made another application to the Flatiron Building today for Dempsey's boxing license and what may or may not be in the definite engagement with Colonel Jere T. Phelan. The latter has been in and out after what happened yesterday, so no one can deny the day of the week and it was, be quite all right with me.

The license must have the okeh of Lt. Gov. Lee Smith just as soon as he can get around to it.

TO PRODUCE CONTRACT.

Growing out Rickard knows his canned words about the supposed engagement the existence of which Phelan denies, the first thing the promoter will do is produce the Dempsey-Tunney contract, which was in the process of being drafted this morning. The license will be issued automatically. Even the colonel doesn't deny this.

In fact it was its absence that he seized upon yesterday for the intended purpose of putting a good face upon a bad situation. He merely succeeded in making the bad situation a trifle worse.

He sat in a tough spot, so he concluded it would be well to quote the boxing rules in effect here on the subject of champions defending their titles against bona fide challenge.

When he had got that far he already had committed the first of a series of monumental faux pas. It was not his wish to declare for Harry Wills, in fact no one colored was there to tender Wills the merry run around.

But he seemed to forget that Wills was and has been the only official challenger here since the $7.50 bout. Tunney never got a challenge across, but he did even better than that. He lined up the champion personally.

LEADING MEN TO AID FUND

Mayor Nichols has named a large number of prominent citizens to serve on the honorary committee of the John F. Mahony tribute.

Mahony, recently known as "Johnny," one of the most widely known newspaper publicity and sporting men in Boston, died July 8, leaving nine children fatherless. The fund is to provide an ample sum to assist the widow and her brood until the little boys and girls are able to be self-supporting.

Proceeds of a big boxing show to be held soon will be turned over to the tribute fund.

CHAPMAN SIGNS TO TACKLE FINNEGAN

Red Chapman and Honolulu Finnegan at noon today affixed their signatures to articles of agreement for a ten-round bout to be staged at Braves Field on August 24 under the direction of the Suffolk A. A. for the widow and nine children of the late Johnny Mahony, Boston newspaper and sports promoter.

The articles of agreement call for the boxers to weigh in at 124½ pounds at 3 o'clock at the office of the Boxing Commission on the day of the contest.

Chapman wished the match at 124 pounds, the featherweight limit, while Finnegan held out for 126 pounds. It was finally agreed that the weight should be 125½ pounds.

The rival boxers will each receive 25 per cent of the gate receipts.

The match originally was made in the Suffolk A. A. ring and for each boxer to be paid a $5,000 guarantee, with a privilege of accepting 50 per cent. of the receipts. In view of the fact that the tussle is now to be staged for Mrs. Mahoney and her nine fatherless children, Chapman and Finnegan waived their guarantees and also reduced their percentages.

Sammy Fuller, North End featherweight, and Johnny Brown of Englland will clash in a ten-round semi-final. There will be a $5 cup for this show.

200 GOLFERS ENTERED FOR GRISWOLD TROPHY

Eastern Point, Ct., Aug. 11 (A.P.)—More than two hundred golfers have entered the seventh annual week's invitation tournament for the Griswold Trophy, which will start tomorrow and continue through Saturday at the Shennecossett Country Club.

Among the starters will be Max Marston, a former amateur champion of the United States, and Fred Wright of Philadelphia, who won the trophy last year.

Howell Still Leads Popularity Test

While the nation-at-large springs a big surprise in picking Dick Howell as the most popular athlete, according to the ballots received in the Hearst Popularity Contest, Boston's voters keep their candidates steadily plodding in the same inexorable order that they started.

Howell's leading position was engineered by his many friends in Chicago, the vote from that city giving him 1,105 ballots the first contestant to surpass the thousand mark. Howell, by the way, is popular throughout the country, as his votes in New York and the Coast prove.

In the meantime, the East continues to support Helen Wills. And after Helen there is Babe Ruth and then Bobby Jones, and then Glenna Collett. There has been no change at all in this standing since the contest first boomed.

Jack Dempsey is in fifth place, followed by Charlie Paddock, and then comes Gertrude Ederle, whose Channel swim has advanced her from the very depths of the race to a fighting seventh place. Trude now leads Red Grange and May Elwell, whom she has been endeavoring to overtake for the past few days.

For steadiness Boston outranks every other section of the country. Local fans evidently are set in their opinions and refuse to be swayed by what goes on anywhere else.

Don't forget that there will be prizes for the voters as well as for those who receive the votes. All who wish to compete for these awards should send in to the Popularity Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, a 50-word letter telling why the selection is made.

For the best letter relating to the football player highest in the voting, a football will be given; for the baseball player, a bat and ball autographed by well-known stars; for the tennis player, a racquet and so forth. Further information will be forthcoming soon.

The leading candidates in the contest in each branch of athletics as well as the winner of the greatest total, will all receive suitable prizes as well.

Here are the rules again. They are simple:

1—Everyone is entitled to vote as many times as desired.
2—Vote for the three athletes you like best.
3—Any American athlete, now in competition, is eligible.
4—Each coupon counts for one ballot.
5—Use the coupon printed in this paper.
6—Mail coupons to popularity Editor, Boston Evening American.

Today's standing.

SOMERVILLE FADES OUT OF LEAGUE

By EDDIE DONDERO.

THE bungle has sounded taps for Somerville in the Twilight League, as the Boston American predicted exclusively Tuesday. The "No Game" sign was nailed to the box office at Tufts Oval last night where Dorchester and Norton's aggregated were expected to stage a league contest.

Only a few free list customers were on hand and unless the Somerville management can play its remaining games away from home it must retire from actual competition. The last game at the Medford bowl has been played. This movement means that Joe Gorman's petition to put the circuit will be reconsidered.

O'Gorman was willing to purchase a franchise two years ago and make the Somerville playground the site of a new park. This would avoid the necessity of a club league in case Somerville does drop out. President J. W. Mooney, after cautioning Norton that the next "fwi" meeting probably will make some radical changes.

MERSEREAU HINTS LENGLEN OUT OF LUCK

New York Aug. 11 (I.N.S.)—Mlle. Lenglen, one of meeting some of the leading amateur players on her first appearance in the United States, is unlikely, it appeared according to an announcement made today by James W. Merserau, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. Making clear that he was speaking purely as an individual, Merserau said it was not the custom of the association to grant such consideration to any foreign player.

As for the Lenglen-Wills tour being carried through under the auspices of the U. S. L. T. A., Merserau said that it was not the association's affair. The tour was being handled by the Wills Management and had no connection with the matter of a professional.

Lenglen was not in the party, but will get the high prize money she earned. She said she would return.

Asked for a statement on professionalism in lawn tennis Lenglen said:

"None of the ruling men in tennis circles in France have any intention of turning professional."

"I'll be all right now," said Young after the game. "That cold left me a little weak, but I'll keep going. I ought to be able to lick a fever."

SOX SHOW MUCH IMPROVEMENT ON ROAD

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 11.—The most successful Western journey staged by the Baron Red Sox in several seasons came to a close here with the visitors losing the final game of the series with the Browns, 6 to 4.

Engaging in 15 games with the Tigers, Indians, White Sox and Browns, Lee Fohl's tailenders finished with a record of 7 victories and 8 defeats.

Notable incidents in the tour included three out of four from the Tigers and two drubbings on the same afternoon to the Indians.

While the Red Sox are not bound for any place in particular, they are making a noise like a major league club and one that may be as much of a surprise in 1927 as the Yankees this season.

Weak hitting has been the biggest handicap with the tail-enders. Their team average measures but .261, which is last in the league and only 417 runs have been scored in 104 games.

Nevertheless the lied Sox of today are a big improvement over the team that swung around this section of the circuit on the first trip. One thing about the Sox that is commendable is that they are fighting every inch of the way. They really spread more color against the Browns than the Yankees, Nationals and Athletics.

WABAN YOUTH OUT OF NET TOURNEY

Chicago Aug. 11 (A.P.)—Youthful title aspirants from the four corners of the nation who arrived yesterday's strenuous play were matched today in the fourth round of singles in the National Junior and Boys' Tennis Championships.

Most of the seeded players remained in the battle but there were gaps in the ranks of the favorites, as a result of the turbulent third day's play.

The chief reversal was the defeat of Henry L. Johnson, Jr., of Waban, Mass., third ranking junior last year, who succumbed before the powerful ground stroking of Howard Langley of Seattle, Wash.

Another upset was the defeat of Harry Moore of White Plains, N. Y., second third in the boys' division, who lost two bitter sets to Dick Lukats of Gary.

The seeded doubles teams disposed of opponents with comparative ease

Johnson to Box Costello at Fort

Ted Johnson, the pride of Fort Banks, faces the toughest assignment of his brief professional career at Winthrop tomorrow night when he tackles Joe Costello of Boston in the main bout of the show.

Both men are notorious mixers and this adds spice to the card. The bout is not expected to last the limit with both men carrying heavy socks.

The preliminary card arranged by Captain Richard Lowry teems with action. Four six-round bouts will precede the main mill. Tony will feature Jimmy Picardi of East Boston, former amateur star, against Frankie McFarland of Boston. Mike Maloney of the North End and Jimmy Bilwell of East Boston, Billy Cahue of the U. S. S. Florida and Johnny Murray of Lynn and Orazio Dow, a Fort Banks soldier, against Joe Watson of the Marines.

Free parking space and a band concert are other features offered at the Fort Banks boxing show.

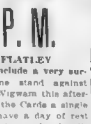
BRAVES CLOSE HOME STAY THIS P. M.

By NICK FLATLEY

THE Braves conclude a very successful home stand against the West at the Wigwam this afternoon. They play the Cards a single game, and then have a day of rest before setting out on the hostile trails. The Sarcroft team has won eight games and lost six in this particular mixup, which is considerable record when you stop to remember that all the opposition was first division stuff.

As things are rolling along now, the natives are in good enough trim to battle things out evenly with the rest of the league for the remainder of the season. Several of the teams up ahead are showing signs of collapse, and a continuous program of good Brave baseball may boost the club up several steps in the parade.

A month into the season Hornsby's brave [illegible] he latest winning streak, and made the present series a fifty fifty affair. The scrap for the odd game today should be very much worth while.



Nick Flatley

ST. LOUIS has a mighty good ball club now that Herzog is getting back [illegible] Rogers can't scamper [illegible] as rapidly as usual, but he's gaining daily, it appears, and is working the option with great gusto. A burning single to center by the thumping manager started the rally that wrecked the Braves.

The defeat ruined the scoreless inning record, naturally, but young Mister Goldsmith did a very effective job, just the same. Any wild pitcher who can hold the pennant greasy cards to one run for eight innings has quite a flock of stuff. Goldy looks better each day he works, and he can win a lot of ball games before he goes out of the league.

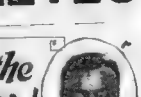
THE Tribe was unfortunate yesterday in more ways than one. They had a great opening when they captured their home run, but this was ruined when the boy pitcher was slow starting home on a perfectly executed squeeze play.

Benny pulled some smart stuff when Hornsby opened the door with a hit. He yanked Goldsmith and sent Mogridge in to pitch against the left handed Bottomley. But the Card topped one of those little push shots past him, as Andy Jilson was in looking for a bunt and the bottom fell out of things.

The same Andy started a Brave drive with a double in that same round, but Rhem was lucky enough to deflect Wilson's smoking liner right at Hornsby and thereby all but ruined the [illegible] run. It just wasn't a Brave day, although the hostile will admit that winning the game wasn't any picnic.

CHASING the CHAMPION



Written by HARRY WILLS for the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

By HARRY WILLS—CHAPTER IX

LANGFORD was the favorite in the betting for our Los Angeles scrap. People know that Sam was a great fighter, but they were still in doubt about me.

There were many persons who declared that I had a good chance to win, so when we entered the ring that day the arena was jammed to capacity.

We were both confident at the start of the fight. I had won easily the first time and thought I knew all about Sam Langford always was sure of himself. He thought that the bout in New Orleans was just a mistake and that he was bound to beat me in 20 rounds.

Langford began more cautiously this time, feinting and trying to pull me in for a left hook—his favorite blow. In a mixup near the ropes I got home a right uppercut and down he went for the count of nine.

The referee counted nine before he got up, but he was down a great deal longer than nine seconds. The papers next day said that he was really down for 12 seconds.

Sam Lands on His Haunches

Finally Sam got up, weak and wobbly on his pins. I shot over a left hook to the jaw and he went down so hard that I felt sure he would not get up again. Once more the referee—George Blake—began one of those slow counts.

The crowd was yelling like mad. There had been a great deal of betting on the fight. The short-enders, who had bet on me, were yelling at the top of their lungs for the referee to count faster and the Langford backers were yelling to give Sam a chance. The noise was too great for the count to be heard and the referee took advantage of the general confusion to prolong the count.

By the time Langford got to his feet, his head had cleared a bit and the bell saved him. The next round was a repetition of the first. Twice Langford went down for long counts of nine and again he was saved by the bell.

Langford soon got onto the fact that he could get a long rest by going down and he took full advantage of it. Soon his head began to clear and some of his strength came back.

From the fourth round of our Los Angeles bout Langford and I went along boxing easily. I decided not to take any chances of tiring myself.

Then came the fourteenth round. Every round had been in my favor and I was having a fine time when suddenly the light went out. What happened always has been a complete mystery to me. All I remember was waking up in my corner and being told that I had lost.

Langford had won the fight after being almost murdered and there was I as fresh and strong as at the start. A moment after my senses came back I did not have so much as a headache. I never felt that final blow at all.

Langford tricked me into leaving that opening. He won fairly, but he could not have done it if I had not been careless.

Referee Gives McVey Decision

There was no use staying in California after losing, so I went back to New Orleans. On Christmas Day I met Sam McVey there in a 20-round bout. The referee gave the decision to McVey, although I thought that I had beaten him all the way.

In 1915 Tommy Burns, who was running a club at New Orleans, matched me for 20 rounds with Battling Jim Johnson. Battling Jim weighed 245 pounds and had arms as thick as my legs.

When we got into the ring he said to me:

"You heard I beat Jack Johnson, didn't you?"

"Yes, I heard about it." I said.

"Well," says Jim, "don't you get fresh or I'll serve you the same way."

In the first round Jim made a wild rush for me, which I met with a straight right that knocked him flat on his back. Jim forget that he had beaten Jack Johnson after that and lost all his ambition. He would do nothing but grab and hold me tightly. I weighed only 180 then. Jim was more than fifty pounds heavier and the strongest man I ever saw in the ring.

ESSEX COUNTY FOUR-BALL TOURNEY OPENS TODAY

SIMPKINS AND BABB LOOK GOOD

Tack Hardwick and Arthur Corwin Also Must Be Reckoned With

By BILL GRIMES.

Manchester-by-the-Sea, Aug. 11.—The first practice session in the Essex County four-ball best-ball championship was sent away at 8:45 this morning by Eugene F. Wogan, and started a field which is both large and able, in spite of the fact that several combinations which went so well last year have been broken up.

Bill Grimes

The first foursome included a team which is looked upon as one of the best in the field. It is composed of John Simpkins, chairman of the golf committee at Essex, and Walter Tufts of the Worcester Country Club.

Dr. C. T. Porter and E. E. Babb, Jr., of Rockport proved a fourth combination for the boys that year and they are out to give their opponents more trouble this year. Porter and Babb are both high up on the list, and are extremely strong at match play and whose team work compares favorably with that of any outfit entered.

Huntington R. (Tacks) Hardwick, the former great Harvard athlete, has teamed with Arthur Corwin from Bass Burn. Hardwick is a newcomer to competitive golf, but he has been playing the game for about five years. He is an exceptionally long hitter, especially with his irons. Corwin, unless all signs fail, will make Hardwick a real two-ninth golfer.

Charles Crane and Carl Hibbard from the Commonwealth Country Club, who won the title last year, are playing with Mel Merrill, the former Dartmouth star athletic, who will coach the W. & J. football team this Fall, and A. Brunsgee.

Play is being started from the first and tenth tees and it is one of the most difficult undertakings attempted in golf to start a field of 200 in four-ball play in one day.

Everything is running in its usual smooth manner, with Eugene F. Wogan as master of ceremonies.

Champs Enter in Dilboy Post Show

That amateur boxing has a firm hold upon the fans of New England is shown by the interest being displayed in the open tournament of Dilboy Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, which will be staged at Tufts Oval tomorrow night. It is expected that a record crowd will be on hand to witness festivities.

There will be bouts in all of the championship classes other than light-heavyweight division. With New England and Pan-American champions entered, the fans are assured of plenty of action.

The committee in charge of the show says there will be at least 16 bouts. This will include four or five heavyweight finales.

SCHOONER LYNX ARRIVES FOR RACE

Newport, R. I., Aug. 11.—The two-masted schooner yacht Lynx, recently built in Italy for Nathaniel F. Ayer of Boston, arrived here after having made the trip from Lussin Piccolo, in 35 days. She was commanded by Captain Giuseppi Martinolich, who, with his crew of nine men, will return to Italy after delivering the Lynx at the Herreshoff Yards at Bristol, where finishing touches will be put on her in preparation for the Astor Cup races.

Inside Golf

The reason I have always discouraged the idea of letting the wrists break the clubhead directly back from the ball is because this action invariably leads the player into too much wrist action and gets his clubhead too far ahead of himself on the back swing. That is, the clubhead is up to the top before anything else happens at all. This increases the difficulty of timing the swing and of maintaining rhythm. It is a little more difficult to learn the knack of keeping hands and clubhead about even in the earlier part of the back swing, but once the golfer has learned that he has something on which to depend. The clubhead, dragging along even with the hands soon accustoms the player's fingers to feeling the weight of it, whereas with fast wrist action in the back swing the clubhead weight is never sensed. Try keeping it even and, to do so, determine to be a little slower in the first half of the back swing.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

AMONG the items of sporting interest noticed in the public prints we select two as meriting comment.

Take, for instance, the leopard hunt in New Jersey. In the first place the escape of this carnivorous cat has given the Jersey mosquitoes a much deserved treat. The fact that the denizens of the skeeter State now have a prey of the leopard's dimensions preludes the age-old jibe, "Aw, take somebody your size."

And there is always the chance that one of the amateur marksmen may "mark five" on a bandit, a reformer, or one of Fiorello's Ducal Tyrannicides.

THE other item concerns the fair sex. We note with alarm that Mrs. Jean Nash and Peggy Hopkins Joyce are duelling over which is to be the acknowledged "best dressed woman in the world." Peggy, we edited with having changed her gown forty times in two blocks. Mrs. Nash's next move is awaited with breathless interest.

Personally the sport doesn't appeal to the more virile side of our nature, but we cannot overlook the box office possibilities of such a world's title bout.

We are awaiting advices from Mr. Pyle, who is closer to the scene of action than we.

ACCORDING to all reports from Saratoga, Earl Sande, America's premier jockey, is outdoing himself in every race in which he rides. His handling of Chance Shot, Rushenia and Flagstaff has evoked reams of praise from all sides. The critics are agreed that he has never been better.

There is, of course, a moral attached to this information.

Only a comparatively short time ago Sande was in a hospital, badly injured, listening to the dicta of doctors who foresaw no chance of his ever riding again.

THE S. R. O. signs are out on the Saratoga hotels. This could easily mean "Sande Rides On."

SPEAKING of sports of all nations, such as New Jersey leopard hunting, [illegible] we were once an interested guest at a banquet given the Young Men's Athletic Association of Venice (Italy.)

As the English language was few and far between, the general tenor of the affair was somewhat hard to grasp. We have vague memories of tasty pastures and vast quantities of hair, but an effort to discover what brand of sport the Young Men's Athletic Association of Venice excelled in met with little success. In fact, no success.

But as an ardent consumers of soup, we have never seen their equal. We have heard soup gulped, gurgled and gargled, whistled, yodeled and strened, but the magnificently executed symphony of the first course of that banquet will long linger as the most unusual sport in which we have ever seen eight strong and healthy men teamed.

PROBABLY Gertrude Ederle regrets that she wasn't on hand to pull Ishak Helmy, the giant Egyptian, when he found that he must give up his Channel attempt.

It will be remembered that Helmy "rescued" Gertrude last year when she was forced to give up. Ishak must be reflecting that he defeated his own ends by his chivalry.

Well, ladies first.

Dempsey Stops Willard to Gain Crown

THIS is the twenty-seventh chapter of Jack Kearns' thrilling story in which he replies to the charges of Jack Dempsey. It is the first time that the man who put Jack Dempsey on the pugilistic map tells of his experiences when he was a prize fighter. Read this story every day in the Boston Evening American.

By JACK KEARNS

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

I HAD impressed on Rickard the fact that he could give Willard what he wanted and that we'd take a chance on ours.

"The fight will promote itself. You don't need any money to put it over. It's a natural and will pay for itself before you have your tickets printed," I told Rickard.

Jack Kearns

Tex was awfully skeptical about Jack's size and weight, pitted against Willard's. But I set his mind at rest on that point by showing him Dempsey's quick knockout record over big men.

The telegram hooked Willard. He sent a reply to Tex telling Rickard that he would meet him in Chicago to talk it over. Tex hopped on the next train and that was the last I heard of him for a few days. Then he came back with Willard's signature.

The ballyhoo came off at the Biltmore. We had all the newspaper boys there and much ado was made about the big match. Tex announced that he had secured Willard's signature and was going to guarantee Jess $100,000.

"What are you going to give Dempsey?" a well known sports writer inquired. Up to this time the subject had never been brought up, not even by Rickard.

"Oh, I'll take care of Dempsey," said Tex. "Kearns knows that."

"Well, it's time we'd get down to some concrete agreement on that score," I said. "You're paying Willard $100,000. We want $50,000 for our end." I expected to see Rickard walk out.

Tex began to dicker. I cut it to $40,000. After a long wrangle I cut it to $30,000. Tex was determined to make me go to $25,000.

Finally I hit on a way to compromise with the hope of getting what I wanted.

"Here's all the newspaper men here," I began. "Let them decide what I'll get. Let them decide by a man to man vote whether you'll pay me $25,000 or $30,000. I'll stand by their vote in the matter."

That was agreeable to Tex and then each newspaper writer wrote either $27,500 or $30,000, and dropped it into a hat. I lost.

I took the verdict in good part and started off on another tour with Dempsey. I landed in Toledo and found it was a pretty good fight town.

Ad Thatcher and the mayor were friends, Thatcher having a license to conduct boxing. I told Thatcher about the possibility of bringing the match there.

I advised Thatcher to wire Rickard and have him come on and talk matters over. I knew that Ted was a close personal friend of Governor James Cox, and would get a fair hearing. Tex came on, saw Thatcher and then Governor Cox and the match was closed for Toledo.

KEARNS ALWAYS BOSS.

I put Jimmy DeForest in charge of the camp but there never was a moment that I wasn't the boss. DeForest took my orders and saw that they were carried out. I knew Dempsey like a book and there wasn't a time when I couldn't tell just what condition Dempsey was in.

We practiced the rip and tear stuff. I had my notions about whipping Willard. Speed was going to do it first of all. Bulk can only be overcome by speed and that's what we were building up at Toledo.

Bill Tate was the only great big man we had and I schooled him to come at Dempsey as Willard would be expected to come. We laid great stress on Willard's ability to rip up with a right hand uppercut, his best punch. If Willard cupped you with that right uppercut in the first round he would whip you.

"We've got to make him miss that first right—the farther the better," I told Dempsey. And then I got up and gave an imitation of how I thought Willard would shoot that first right that would either win or lose the title for him. "If we can make him miss the first, and we will, the title is yours. He'll come at you with one thought in his mind [illegible]" I walked out fast, met Jess three-quarters of the way across the ring, went right up to him, bobbed, feinted and stepped aside. Wham! went the right just as he sidestepped but I missed one guess. I told Dempsey that Jess would miss him a foot. He missed him by ten feet.

WILLARD FOLLOWS OTHERS.

Dempsey quickly circled around in his tracks, went right back and up to Willard, feinted as if to repeat and then hooked a left to Willard's big fat eye, closing it with the first punch.

A right cross hard and straight to the heart followed and Willard's hands went down. Dempsey stepped back and then in again. A left hook to one side of his jaw, a right to the other, and the great Jess Willard sat down like a dump cart of red bricks.

All the confidence went out of Willard with that first miss. I knew it would do the trick. After that terrible muff, he was afraid to lead. He went down seven times in all in that first round, proof that Dempsey could hit. Nobody had ever floored him like that before.

YANKEES LOOM AS PENNANT CERTAINTY

Fifteen games in the West, widely regarded as a crucial test, have left the New York Yankees well ahead of the field in the American League.

Ten victories against five defeats, .667 baseball where .600 undoubtedly would have been acceptable, show on the Huggins record for the invasion and only one more foreign tour stands between the present leaders and another league pennant.

Where a month ago Cleveland had to play .667 ball to tie the Yanks playing .805, the Westerners' percentage for the remainder of the season must be .750.

In other words, if the Yankees win 22 and lose the same number the Indians must register 39 conquests against 11 losses to tie.

WHO is the world's featherweight champion?

Boston Evening American's title vote has done more to clear up this situation than anything else.

Red Chapman and Chick Suggs continue to lead the pack with Sammy Fuller and Honeyboy Finnegan coming strong.

Suggs has shown remarkable strength in all parts of New England. Chapman has got his best vote from Dorchester and Chelsea, while the North End and East Boston have been for Fuller. In the case of Suggs he is popular in every State in New England.

Jim Maloney's quick knockout over Charley Weinert has [illegible] more given him standing in the boxing world. Nobody got very much excited when the South Boston citizen stopped Joe Stonesal and then pasted Charley Cook. It is another story now that Jim has released some of his dynamite on Weinert's chin. There are [illegible] fans who figure Maloney [illegible] Jack Sharkey. As Sharkey usually meets all-comers, Maloney will be given an opportunity to try for the title.

The Maloney-Rennett bout planned by the Suffolk Club has been called off. The Boxing Commission has ruled that the Commercial Club has a prior claim on Jim's services. Maloney signed to battle Carl Carter for Col. McKirdy a few months back only to have the Commission block the match on the ground it looked like one of those things.

Johnny McGrath claims the action of the Commission released Maloney from his contract with the Commercial Club, but the boxing fathers have ruled otherwise.

It will be three m[illegible] before George (Kid) Lee, [illegible] England welterweight champion, is able to resume activities in the ring. It will take that long before the muscles of his injured [illegible] are firmly back in place.

Extra Pleasure from an Extra Process

Even without the toasting process, LUCKY STRIKES would rank as very fine cigarettes.

It would be a fine cigarette because it is made of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, perfectly aged and blended.

But the costly extra process of toasting lifts LUCKY STRIKES out of the ordinary, gives LUCKY STRIKES three distinctive features.

Toasting at high heat for 45 minutes (1) removes all "bite" and harshness and (2) develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. Then (3) sudden chilling seals in these flavors and the proper degree of moisture which keeps them always fresh.

"IT'S TOASTED" represents a costly extra process that adds the finishing touch to a wonderfully fine cigarette.

BECAUSE IT'S TOASTED

That's Why Luckies Taste So Good

WHOLE FAMILY MUST AID BUDGET

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

Budget Talk No. 133

By MARTHA LEE

TODAY I am still harping on that personal fund and how to spend it.

When we list all the things that are supposed to come out of the allotment, which is 16 per cent. of the total family income, their number is appalling.

All these things not actual living necessities are grouped together under personal.

Since we cannot eat our cake and have it, too, the family forum is the most satisfactory way of settling just how this personal fund shall be spent. Let the family decide whether they will indulge in ice cream for Sunday dinner or put this money toward a piano lesson a week for Betty. Let them decide too whether a new set of living room furniture is more to be desired than a week's vacation for the whole family.

Let them decide what things belong in the front row of desirables and what should retire to the back seats. Let them settle such questions as whether a radio shall be bought and a chiffon dress can rightly be considered an item on the clothes budget of the son making $18 a week.

Let these meetings be attended by the whole family and led by parents who, we hope, have not forgotten their own youth. Sympathy and family helpfulness will be developed.

Instill in your children, too, the fact that the right use of money is one of the cornerstones of honesty as well as happiness. People who are always in debt and are grasping at toys that they can't afford, cannot develop courage, a happy heart and liberty of spirit.

A life of petty subterfuges and dodging creditors eventually undermines one's moral nature. I can think of nothing that will so hard en the human heart and dull the conscience as does the habit of living beyond one's income.

The fine points of honesty cannot be instilled too young in our children. I well remember seeing my father correct the grocer's bill, where there was a mistake of $1.20 in his own favor. I have been in his favor.

Of course we can't expect the family to become a unit all at once, but compromises will be made and the various members will learn to give and take. They will be learning the value of money by a shorter and pleasanter route than the usually painful and expensive school of experience.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. C. H. B. asks for a Budget for $40.33. Three in family, including two-year-old child. Have a small car, but no garage rent. Pay $10 a week house rent, $8 a week for husband's lunches, cigarettes and carfares. Doctor $20. Insurance $16.84 twice yearly and 10 cents weekly. Furniture bill $4.81 monthly. Husband is anxious to take inexpensive vacation in October and also wants to save for coal in November. Need another $100 worth of furniture.

A standard Budget will give you $5.16 weekly for rent and business carfares, $10.20 for food, $6.12 for operating, $4.08 for savings. Including all insurance premiums, $4.12 for clothing and $4.12 for personal, out of which must come the vacation money and the payments on the furniture. Do you mean that you are paying $20 a week on the doctor's bill? $3 a week is about all you can afford on this back bill, since it, too, must come out of the personal fund. Every expense of the automobile must come out of personal, also. Money for this coal should come out of operating, but band practice out of the food fund, the business carfares out of the shelter money, cigarettes out of personal.

Mr. T. J. R. asks for a Budget for $65 a week. Five in family. Rent $55 a month including garage.

As you don't tell me whether the members of your family are adults or children I cannot make a very exact food Budget for you. However, I would suggest shelter and business carfares $15, food $16.50 including business lunches, clothing $9.75, operating $9.75, savings $6.50 and personal $9.75.

X. Y. Z. receives $1100 a year in ten payments. Pays $50 a month for room, board and washing, $12.46 quarterly for insurance, $5 a month for building loan. Would like a Budget showing what to spend on clothes and how much to save.

I am sorry to have to tell you that you are paying too much for board and washing. A standard Budget would allow you $41.25 monthly for board and room, including business carfares and lunches, $18.75 for clothing a month, $18.75 for operating, which means laundry, postage, telephone calls, all service such as barbering and shoe shines; $6.16 for savings monthly, and $18.75 for personal. The insurance and building loan payments come out of savings. You may have a surplus under operating which you can add to your board division.

"One who has to skimp" asks how she can get along on $18 a week for two in family. Has a pension that pays for gas, wood, coal and a few clothes. Pays $8 a week rent. Has run in debt on account of sickness.

I am sorry to say that your rent is out of proportion to your income. A standard Budget for $18 allows only $1.80 for shelter, including business carfares, $4.50 for food, $1.80 for savings, $1.20 for operating, $1.80 for clothing and $1.20 for personal. Of course you can't live on $4.50 for food and will have to use your pension money here.

If you will give me the amount of your pension I will be glad to make another Budget for you on your total income, which is the only right way to Budget.

Mrs. G. R. S., with an income of $50 a week and four children to educate a few years from now, wants a Budget.

Are you building castles in the air? Budget will make your dreams come true.

Try savings $5, shelter $16 with business carfares, food $20, including downtown lunches, $12 for operating, $12 for clothing and $12 for personal. The expenses of education can be divided between personal and savings.

Mr. F. R. A. is anxious to go into business for himself and asks how much of his income of $50 a week can be allotted to Savings.

The standard budget for $50 for three people would give ordinarily only $3 for Savings, $10 for Shelter, $10 for Food, $12 for Operating, $12 for Clothing and $13 for Personal. It becomes simply a question of how much you can take away from the other five allotments to add to your Savings fund but I should think you could easily spare $5 from Food and $4 each from Operating, Clothing and Personal, which would make a total of $26 a week for Savings.

Mrs. M. G. M.'s husband makes $18 a week. Gives her $15. Has two children. Husband's lunches come to $1.25 weekly. Lives with father, and he pays rent and buys Sunday dinner. Need another $100 for clothing and $1.20 for personal. Of course you can't live on $4.50 for food and will have to use your pension money here.

If you will give me the amount of your pension I will be glad to make another Budget for you on your total income, which is the only right way to Budget.

Mrs. G. R. S., with an income of $50 a week and four children to educate a few years from now, wants a Budget.

How to Succeed in Keeping Outgo in Bounds dinner. Insurance fifty-cents weekly.

You should budget your total allowance which would give $5.85 for food, $2.85 for operating, $1.90 for savings, $2.85 for clothing and $2.85 for personal.

Mrs. V. A. S. asks how to budget $60, including $11 a week for maid. I am afraid you will have to borrow from Peter to pay Paul, in order to cover the maid's salary out of operating, which is its rightful place.

A $60 budget will allow you $13 for rent and business and school carfares, $15 for food, $9 for clothing, $9 for operating, savings $6, including insurances, and personal $8.

GREETINGS, everybody!

Are you hard put to it for dinner menus that will allow your conscience some rest from the prodings of Budget? Here's one that's so very good that the family will think you are splurging instead of economizing. A dinner costing only $1 and serving four people may be had from the following menu:

Cream of Corn Soup
Buttered Stringless Beans on Toast
Escalloped Tomatoes
Bread and Butter
Apple Snow Coffee

The ingredients for the delicious corn soup would be one can of corn, costing 15c, and a pint of milk costing 9c. Two cans of stringless beans would be needed and these are 2 cans for 25c. After tasting the extremely palatable escalloped tomatoes, nobody will believe that they were made from one can of tomatoes costing 8c. A loaf of bread costing 8c at some stores and 6c at others will supply the toast and also the bread for the dinner.

Enough coffee for four people, bought at an average rate of 40c a pound, would cost approximately 6c. One can of applesauce costing 15c at special sales, and the whites of 2 eggs at 11c will make the apple snow. These total 91c, which allows 9c which allows 9c for butter.

The stringless beans on toast and the escalloped tomatoes both make excellent substitutes for meat, and together supply the main course at the meal.

CREAM OF CORN SOUP—Chop one can corn, add one pint of boiling water and simmer twenty minutes; rub through a sieve. Scald one pint milk with one slice of onion, remove onion, and add milk to corn. Bind with two tablespoons butter and two tablespoons flour cooked together. Add one teaspoon of salt and a few grains of pepper.

APPLE SNOW—Pare, quarter and core four sour apples, steam until soft, and rub through sieve; there should be three-fourths cup apple pulp. Beat on a platter the whites of three eggs until stiff (using wire whisk). Add gradually the apples, sweetened to taste with powdered sugar, and continue beating. Pile lightly on glass dish, chill, and serve with boiled custard sauce.

BOILED CUSTARD SAUCE—Beat the yolks of three eggs slightly, using a fork, add one-quarter cup sugar and one-eighth teaspoon salt; stir constantly while adding gradually two cups scalded milk. Cook in double boiler, continue stirring until mixture thickens and a coating is formed on the spoon, strain immediately; chill and flavor.

If cooked too long, the custard will curdle; should this happen, by using an egg-beater it may be restored to a smooth consistency, but custard will not be as thick. Eggs should be beaten slightly for custard, that it may be of smooth, thick consistency. To prevent scum from forming, cover with a perforated tin. When eggs are scarce, use yolks of two eggs and one-half tablespoon cornstarch.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

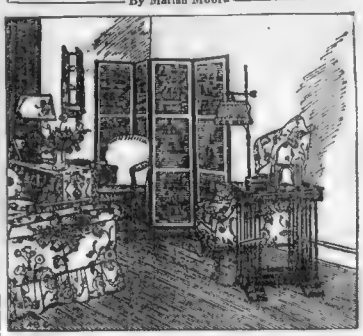
Furnishing the Home

By Marian Moore



NESTING tables generally come in sets of four, fitting snugly one inside the other, so that they take up but little floor space when needed.

Their use as end-tables is illustrated in the picture, but they can be used in the picture, but they can also decorate a narrow wall section such as the space between two windows. In that case a vertical picture or Venetian mirror should be hung above to complete the effect.

Never fold your nest of tables completely, as the result would lack grace and lightness; the proper way is to pull each table slightly out, stair-step fashion.

Nesting tables can be had in natural wood—walnut or maple specimens being particularly popular—or in decorated effects: green, yellow red or crackle finish.

When scattered about the room, they consolidate the general color scheme by confessing the chosen hue in two or three selected points. The note can be still further emphasized by means of small hanging bookshelves.

Besides the part they play in the decorative scheme, nesting tables serve a very practical purpose by supplying instant accommodation for the guest's to whom a light meal is served. Whether the occasion be afternoon tea, midnight lunch or Sunday supper, both the hostess and those who enjoy her dainty collation appreciate the serviceable little tables placed within reach of each person.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Is it proper for a girl to show her affection for a young man after she is engaged to him? Is it proper for her to kiss him good-night every time she sees him? Please let me know soon.

BLUE EYES.

YES, Blue Eyes, it is proper and natural to show affection for your fiance to the extent of kissing him good-night every time you see him. Of course you would not care to display your affection in this way in a public place where it do so would be conspicuous. But kisses are proper and natural between two persons who love each other and have proved their love by an engagement to wed

Beauty Hints

MUCH has been written about small hands, but very little has been said for the girl whose hands happen to be larger.

The best advice for anyone who is consciously aware that her hands are large is to forget them. She shouldn't think about them being large. To remember them means that she will use them awkwardly and draw other people's attention to them. If she is used naturally they won't be half so noticeable.

A girl with large hands should never wear tight cuffs. Whenever possible the bottom of the sleeve should be fashioned with a point over the hand. A soft pleating of silk or lace peeping out below the bottom of the cuff is a point worth trying.

If the hands are well cared for, however, their size does not matter overmuch. The nails should not be too highly polished, but they should be filed short and round and made to look as natural as possible.

For red hands a little glycerine and rosewater should be rubbed into them every night after first washing in warm water.

Wreathing Conquering Heroes

With laurel leaves was an ancient custom. Today the woman who manages to conquer fashion long enough to keep up with it expresses her triumph in terms of a necklet and earrings of gold filigree leaves, with small beads nestled among the leaves in berry effect. Pearl, coral, amethyst or jade beads are effectively used.

Fresh Green Vegetables At Their Best

What is the best way to cook fresh vegetables so that they will be tender, green and appetizing? It is a problem easily solved—with the aid of that old standby, Baking Soda.

Luscious Green Peas: Shell one quart of peas. Add a pinch of salt to a stew pan containing boiling water, then add the peas, and finally add a pinch of baking soda, either ARM & HAMMER BRAND or COW BRAND—boil 15 to 20 minutes in the open pan, then add one teaspoonful of sugar, and, according to taste, one-half teaspoonful of sugar. Because of the baking soda, the peas retain their fresh green color, and are more tender.

Fresh string beans and new green cabbage are likewise much improved when cooked with a pinch of baking soda. Both famous brands of baking soda, ARM & HAMMER BRAND and COW BRAND are made by Church & Dwight Co., Inc., and both are the same product—pure bicarbonate of soda with a hundred helpful uses—get a package today at your grocer's.

This is the most economical way to purchase pure Bicarbonate of Soda.

"Too Tired to Move"

HOW often we hear a woman use this expression! She is in a weakened and run-down condition, not fit to do her work. Bravely she struggles on. She becomes nervous and discouraged.

Whether she lives in a luxurious apartment, a cozy bungalow or a crowded city flat, every woman can understand the handicap of poor health. The woman in moderate circumstances suffers more, of course, than her well-to-do friend because she cannot afford to hire help.

In spite of her efforts, her house begins to look neglected. Her children say, "Mother is so cross."

Eagerly she listens when a neighbor tells her of other women who found the road to health and happiness.

Health? That's the answer to so many of our problems. Without health, a woman cannot make her home the happy haven she dreams of.

Mrs. GOLDIE SHOUP of May View, Illinois, is one of the many women who have improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was in a run-down condition which caused her much unhappiness.

Mrs. SHOUP says, "I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I think it is the most wonderful medicine I ever tried." She declares that she is now in better health than ever before.

CHAPTER XLIX

Copyright, 1926, Johnson Features, Inc.

LATE that night, Helen came into the spare bedroom where Merry was sleeping and wakened her. She had a coat on over her kimono and her hair was dragged back tightly from her white face.

"Merry," she said, turning on the lights, "I'm going to the hospital. I've phoned for the cab."

She caught her breath and her eyes darkened with sharp and sudden pain.

Then, with an effort, she went on: "Mother Hepworth will be over first thing in the morning and she knows just what to do for the baby. So if you'll just give him his 4 o'clock bottle—" She choked up and closed her eyes to keep back the tears that smarted in them.

"I wish Bill was here," she said presently, in a smothered voice. "I feel so—alone—without him." Her words were coming in jerks, now, and she breathed hard.

"Too bad—he had to go away just now, wasn't it?—I need him so—"

She started down the stairs as the taxicab came rolling up outside in the dark street. Merry followed her, and stood at the front door watching her drive away.

"Moms should be with her," she thought. But Helen had spoken only of wanting Bill Hepworth, her husband.

"Funny thing," Merry went on thinking, as she looked at the moon, small and silvery and high in the sky. "Funny thing that a man can mean more to a woman than her own mother—"

She turned back to the living room, and stood there in the middle of it, wondering if a little house like this would ever be Heaven to her, as this undoubtedly was to Helen.

She wondered if ever she would care for a man as Helen cared for Bill Hepworth—to care for him so much that it was joy to scrub the floors of his house, keep its windows bright, put a garden around it and peace and contentment within it.

She found herself shaking her head, as she went slowly back upstairs to bed. "I never could do it for Bill Erskine, anyway," she told herself.

When she looked forward to her marriage with Bill, she looked forward to the thrills he would give her. The beautiful house, the lovely clothes, the kind of automobile she had always longed for.

But when she thought of actual marriage with Bill—of living with Bill—she just stopped thinking of it! Merry never let her mind dwell on unpleasant things, if she could help it.

When she got home that night there was a letter from Bill for her on the hall table.

She read it, standing there in the hall.

Then she read it again.

Then she read it a masterpiece.

"My dear Merry," it ran. "I have been thinking about us—you and me —a great deal lately.

"And I have finally made up my mind that we have been a little flighty over seriously as I have been doing. By 'things' I mean our marriage, of course.

"My dear girl, do you think that you and I are really suited to one another, after all? I very much doubt it.

"You are barely twenty-two. I am getting dangerously close to forty-five. To the time of life when a man wants to settle down.

"Nothing looks so good to me, at my time of life, as my own fireside. And that would never satisfy you, Merry. You thrive on excitement, the bright lights, gayety and attention, not from one man, but many men.

"When do you expect to be married?" Moms' second husband asked bewilde. "It seems to me you've been getting married ever since I've lived in this house."

Merry flushed and bit her lip. "I'm going to be married some time this summer," she said distinctly.

She did not speak of her wedding with the same air of triumph that she might have mustered it a year before. It had been put off so many times that she, herself, had her doubts of its ever coming off.

up up at the Crow's Nest," thought Merry in the bitterness of her heart; "jealous of me, because I'm prettier than she is; because I can get 'most any man she cared to attract.

"And Bill Erskine isn't the only fish in the ocean!" Merry said to herself, as she put the letter away in a wooden box where she kept all the other letters that Bill had written to her. The other ones that he had signed "ours 'til the cows come home."

The next morning, as soon as Merry heard her mother stirring around down stairs, she got up.

"Well!" Moms fairly exploded with surprise, "what gets you up so early in the morning?"

This, Merry answered, and handed Bill's letter on the table.

"What did Bill have to say?" Lena asked, and in a dull tonelessness Merry told her what he had to say.

He doesn't want to marry me. He thinks I'm too gay for him."

Moms snorted. "Humph!" said she. "It's taken him a good while to find it out, hasn't he?"

"Merry, I've told you all along that this very thing would happen, haven't I?" she went on. "I've told you that six months is plenty long enough for two people to be an item to each other. There ought to be a law against long engagements! No man has any business hing up a girl's time unless he ands to marry her!

"Erskine is too old for you, and I've always said so. I'd be a lot happier if you had taken up with someone your own age. But you didn't—and if he thinks he's going to toss you aside now like an old glove he's mightily mistaken!"

Merry glanced up at her with a quick, puzzled look.

"What can we do about it, Moms?" she asked. "There's nothing to do but I can see."

Moms gave a snort. "I didn't expect you to!" she answered in her short, sharp way. "But there are two things that I can think of right now, and I certainly am going to do both of them!"

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Moms ann-unces Merry's engagement in the newspaper. Moms' new husband finds fault with the actions of the family. Read it in tomorrow's chapter of "Tarnished Wings."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

SOMETIMES, I often dream of it, How splendid things will be! Sometime I catch the gleam of it, That promises for me! The day will be brighter then, more filled with song and my loads will all be lighter then, my tasks more swiftly done. I'll travel then to lands far where thrilling romance waits, I'll wander over sands afar, behold strange cities' gates. Sometime, I'll have my dearest ones to dwell close by my side, my truest ones and nearest ones to love and bless and guide. Sometime—but, still, that may be far and, in long years between, these well-loved ones—will they be far and all too seldom seen? Sometime, I often dream of it; and yet henceforth I vow I'll put aside the gleam of it and get to living now!

When Love Enters a Girl's Life

There May Also Be a Bit of Envy

DRAWN BY POPINI

IT'S always the way—there's never a joy that hasn't an accompanying sorrow. And so it is with this quartet who gaily started on their vacation trip. They'd promised each other that nothing—no, nothing at all—would come between them. But they reckoned without Love.

Of course, he was hiding when the four were making their plans, and he, likewise, did some planning on his own account. And just when they were having the most glorious time he sent the man whom he had picked for the favored of the quartet—and presto! the quartet became a trio. They're a bit disappointed that their plans have all fallen through, and somewhat chagrined that they, individually, weren't chosen. But frankly they're envious.

They, too, have been looking forward to the time when Love shall call them, and it is a bit hard not to be the first. But, never mind, Dan Cupid is still around and still looking for more hearts to enroll in his ledger of Love.

'He's Not Exactly the Man of My Dreams,' She Told Herself

"He's not exactly the man of my dreams," she admitted to herself.

But what else was there to do but go ahead and marry him. As Moms said, he had "taken up two years of her time." Everybody was sure she was going to marry him. And besides, who else was there in sight to marry?

That night Helen's second baby—a little girl—was born. It lived only two hours, and then next morning at dawn Helen died, too.

Her death stunned the whole family. For weeks Moms went around the house, dry-eyed and dazed-looking as if she couldn't realize what had happened.

Bill Hepworth took himself and his baby back to his father's house, and early in April the little heiress was sold just as it stood—furniture and all—to a family with five children. The little house that had been an earthly Paradise to Helen.

"It might have brought it and gone there to live instead of staying in this old barn," Mr. Heffinger remarked to Moms and Merry one morning at breakfast.

Merry shook her head at Mr. Heffinger.

"Oh, no, Mr. Heffinger!" she said. "We just never could move out of this old house until after I'm married—I never could be married any place but here in father's and mother's house."

Moms was frowning at her from behind the coffee percolator. She had asked Merry, time and time again, not to mention Dad's name before Mr. Heffinger.

"When do you expect to be married, dreams?"

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

OUTSIDE of ants, the hardest pest to get rid of is the pantry prowler. He's the fellow who burglarizes the ice box after the rest of the family have gone to bed.

HE usually goes up about three o'clock in the morning and starts touring the kitchen.

HE eats anything that isn't nailed down.

HE thinks nothing of going into the cupboard and making up a whole can of sardines.

EVEN the roast chicken in the ice box can't get a good night's sleep.

IT'S getting so that a lot of housewives have to put burglar alarms on their bread boxes.

ONE woman bought an Eskimo watch dog and made him sit in the refrigerator all night.

BUT he was a poor investment. He sat there three weeks and all he caught was pneumonia.

HE got cold so easily that she had to put an oil stove in the ice box to keep him warm.

THE pantry prowler made friends with the dog by bringing him a hot water bag.

ANOTHER woman lost so much food at night that the only way she could save it was to eat it before she went to bed.

HER husband used to break into the cookie jar so often that she had to put stop-lights on all the doughnuts.

WHEN this didn't do any good, she started filling them with barbed wire.

BUT he took a local anaesthetic and went on eating them anyway.

HE didn't care what he ate as long as he didn't feel any pain.

SOME nights he got so hungry that he'd steal the milk out of the cat's saucer

HE only lived in this house six months, but already twenty-three mice have starved to death.

AND every other mouse in the neighborhood has grown up to hate him.

DAILY SHORT STORY

"MY name is Melviney, but they call me Shug," the littlest girl in a school answered, when the new teacher asked.

"What is your name, Pearl?"

Shug stood with her fingers in her mouth, smiling sweetly upon the young teacher, who had just come that very day to "town's Bluff," in the hills of Tennessee.

Now Shug was only going on seven, and she did not know very much about anything, but one thing she did know and that was how to be sweet and obedient, always.

Shug had great, soft, black eyes, that seemed to shed a little glow of good-will and affection upon everybody. Her coal black hair lay in little ringlets around a rosy, sun-burned face. At the bottom of her plaid, dress a pair of plump legs made one laugh, just for the pure joy of beholding them.

When the teacher said to the Primary class, "This word is box," Shug smiled happily and repeated "This word is box." If the teacher said, "Two birds and three birds are how many birds?" Shug echoed, "Two birds and three birds are how many birds?"

The young teacher was very patient, and Shug was patient too —also very willing to do what she was told.

One Monday morning the new teacher told her pupils that they would have speeches on Friday afternoon, but most of the children said "Naw'm I can't say no speech." "Will you say a speech next Friday, Shug," the worried teacher implored. I will if you'll teach me one," the child answered with a trustful smile.

So the teacher taught Shug a speech, and she taught the little girl how to make the gestures and just what expression to use in each line. The child imitated every tone and gesture until she could say that speech as well as the teacher could.

Shug quite covered herself with glory on "speech day." So well did she recite that the children gathered around her after school and begged Shug to "say it again." And Shug, being a most accommodating little lady said that speech until she was weary of it. But there was no rest for the speech-sayer. When over grown people were assembled, for weeks afterward, there also was Shug, saying her speech.

Shug's mother was proud of her daughter's accomplishment. She sat in blissful content, listening breathlessly every time the child spoke her piece. "But Shug's Daddy had not heard that speech at all. For he and Uncle Jed and Grandpap were 'tendin' the still way out under Coon's Bluff and they darsent leave it till the stuff was made and sold."

One night Shug thought she heard her Daddy's voice in the little dirt floor cabin she called home. "Now ole lady," he was saying, "of you see 'em comin' you be deed shore to git an word afore they git thar." When Shug jumped up to see her beloved Daddy, her mother told her that she had been dreaming and to go back to sleep like a good girl.

Next day Shug and her mother were sitting on the block, which served as a step in front of the house. All at once the mother's face went white and she spraddled Shug to "say it again." And Shug, being a most accommodating little lady said that speech until she was weary of it. But there was no rest for the speech-sayer. When snatched her old sunbonnet off of the nail and was starting out the back door. "Mind your manners, Honey," she called back to the child, "and see if you can stop 'em just a few minutes."

Shug did not know what "officers' meant, but she did know that they were not her Daddy's friends. She also knew that she "must mind her manners," because her mother had told her to do so.

"Mornin'," Shug said politely to the revenue men who stopped in front of the door.

The officers were not looking for a black eyed, rosy-cheeked little girl, with a soft voice and sweet little manners." They were on the lookout for big, rough mountaineers, with loaded guns in their hands. So the sight of Shug rather took away their breath for a minute.

"Wont you light and hitch?" Shug asked remembering her manners. Yes, they believed they would.

"Could I fetch you a drink?" she asked, bobbing a funny little curtsy.

"Of what, Little Lady?" one man asked and then they all laughed. But Shug only said, "Sir." Then she hurried to the well and pulled up a bucket of fresh water with her own strong little arms. "Excuse me the gourd," she said to each one, as she passed the water around. Shug never forgot her manners.

Then the men began mounting their horses again and Shug remembered that her mother had said, "See if you can stop 'em just a minute, Honey." If everybody else had liked her speech, Shug thought, perhaps officers might like it too. "Hey! Hey!" Shug called excitedly to the officers who were preparing to ride on. "Wouldn't ye like to hear me speak my piece?"

A look of astonishment passed between the men, but they dismounted and stood with their hats off, while they assured the disconsolate child that the pleasure would be great. So Shug said her speech, and the men clapped their hands with great zeal. Then she watched them ride down the long rough hill, away from her home, and on up another longer, rougher hill.

At the top of the last hill a woman with an old sunbonnet pulled down over her face, "Passed the time of day" with the horseman, and then turned to watch them out of sight. "Ketch 'em of you kin," she muttered, bitterly.

Late that afternoon a group of tired, disappointed revenue officers rode, again, past Shug's house. She and her mother sat on the block step. The men waved their hats at the child, who smiled and waved back joyously. Shug's mother laughed softly when she heard one ... "All our trouble for nothing. It was easy enough to find the still, but not a pint of moonshine, nor a sign of a moonshiner could we see anywhere."

Then the mother gathered Shug into her arms, "But it hadn't a been fer you and your speech, Youngun, they'd be carryin' your Pa and Grandpa and Jed back to jail with 'em," she whispered. "Two minutes sooner and they'd a caught 'em. You shore air a good little gal, Shug."

"That thar red-faced man said he didn't know which he liked the best, me er my speech," Shug announced unblushing, wh le she wriggled out of her mother's embrace, "I bet Daddy'll like that speech," she continued proudly. "He shore will."

FILIAL PIETY IN KOREA

THERE is still one place at least where filial devotion is part of the boy's training. This is the little peninsula of Korea, or Chosen, as it is called there. The devotion of the Korean boy to his father is most striking. His affection is al-ways very great and what is even finer and more to be admired, it is always sincere.

His conduct toward his father is guided by a great number of rules. He must never leave his father's side for very long, no matter what the provocation. If the father is ill his son must give up every mo-ment of his time to his care. If he is in prison his son must take up his abode near at hand and visit him constantly; if he is exiled his son must share that exile. If his son meets him in the street or even in the privacy of his house he must bow to the ground before him. If he writes to him he must employ the humblest and most respectful terms in the language.

When his father dies the eldest son becomes the head of the house hold. He is now looked upon by his mother, brothers and sisters as the nominal father. He is responsible for the welfare of the family. As he has inherited all of his father's property, he must see that his rela-tives dependent upon him are in need of nothing. In return he re-ceives the undivided respect of his family and has the exalted rank of the "man of the house."

Korea belongs to Japan. Although most of the 8,000,000 inhabitants are Mongolians and closely resemble the Japanese, many of the people are Caucasian and, except for their very shiny black hair, might even be taken at first glance for English-men.

The customs of the Koreans are somewhat similar to the Japanese practices. Women, although they enjoy a great deal of freedom among the lower classes, are very highly esteemed. Of course, in the upper strata of Korean society women are kept in the strictest seclusion. But, on the whole, they are a contented people.

'You Said It, Marceline!'

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "LOVE STRATEGY"

SOME MEN THINK
They are WONDERFUL
LOVERS, simply because
They CAN'T WAIT
For a woman
To make up her mind
Whether she really wants
Them or NOT,
And they TELL HER SO.
THUS IMPATIENCE PLEASES
WOMEN. They call
It IMPETUOSITY, and CONFUSE IT with REAL LOVE.
THE MAN who demands
EVERYTHING or NOTHING
Should be given
NOTHING
To SPEAK OF; for
MEN who want TOO
MUCH often TALK
TOO much.
And the man who Says he MUST have
Everything often wants
It—for NOTHING.
A WISE WOMAN gives
A man SOMETHING
To go on with; then,
If he wants MORE,
He can COME BACK—
And TRY AND GET IT.

MARVIN WILL YIELDS HIGH GO ABROAD ON B. & M. AUG. 11 ISSUES

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor.

One gentleman with a very special interest in the freeing of the toll bridges to the island was Col. New Castle, N. H., is Colonel Thomas G. Marvin of Boston, chairman of the Tariff Commission. Col. Marvin is going to Europe August 11. I understand. His interest in the toll bridge matter lies in the fact that the state's home lies right at the end of the freed toll route.

Another aftermath of the visit of Clarence Dillon, prominent financier, to Europe has just become evident. Dillon, Read & Co. have concluded arrangements for a $2,300,000 loan to the Berlin Electrical Works.

An important financial pact has just been negotiated. An agreement has been made between Harris, Forbes & Co. and the Mortgage-Bond Company of New York, whereby the former will receive part of the latter's 5½ per cent. which each month to offer to their clients. It is announced. An unofficial report said that the amount involved was $90,000 per month. The agreement, which brings into close relationship one of the country's most important mortgage loan companies and a likewise important bond originating and distributing house, is looked upon in financial circles as an interesting development in the real estate and bond fields.

Reorganization of the North American Light and Power Company of Maine has been completed with the incorporation of a new company in Delaware under the same name. An interest in the concern has been purchased by the Middle West Utilities Company, an insull organization. Substantial holdings also have been acquired by the North American Company. New financing, in the form of a $10,000,000 bond issue, is expected soon.

Bradlee, Hatherly Fowler, Jr., Walter Jackson and Frank W. Remick. For nominating committee, 1928-27: Walter J. Bullen, William Griffin, Jr., John F. Doyle, James J. Minot, Jr., and Charles L. Todd.

Frank Joyce, publicity manager of the Boston & Maine road, has escaped the hot spell in New England by helping make successful the trip through the Middle West of the New England Governors and their representatives. It was, however, a case of "out of the frying pan into the fire," for the genial Mr. Joyce left New England heat comfort only into still greater torrid ity, as love would have it, in the Middle West.

Conditions of the New England apple crop is 69.6 per cent. of normal and forecasts a crop of 2,204,000 barrels, compared with 3,044,000 barrels harvested last year and the five year average of 1,893,000, V. A. Saunders and C. D. Stevens, federal statisticians, made this report today, adding that Massachusetts with a prospective crop of 775,000 barrels had a good lead over the other New England states.

During the past month, the statisticians said, the New England potato prospects, in most cases, materially improved over last year's backward condition a month ago. The present outlook is for 42,340,000 bushels, a little below the five year average, but comparing favorably with last year's New England crop of 42,795,000 bushels.

"With all these drownings attributed to the undertow in certain New England beaches, I suppose that the Old State Street Trader, "it's about time for some one to start the annual discussion as to whether or not there is an undertow."

The last time I met my old friend, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy Frank W. Hackett, who died in Maine Tuesday, was, oddly enough, on the water. The water, however, was not particularly good for Secretary Hackett and I were aboard one of the big Nantasket steamers. He discussed with me the mention of the Nantasket trip made in the essays of Ralph Waldo Emerson, the dean of American literature. Mr. Howells was then passing the Bunker Hill Monument. Mr. Hackett was always very proud of having opened a law office in Boston following his graduation from Harvard in the old days. He was perhaps equally proud of having enjoyed mutual friendship with Thomas Bailey Aldrich, whose birthplace at Portsmouth is now a shrine place for the rising generations. He and the late Secretary of the Navy, John D. Long, were very intimate.

With Boston & Maine first preferred stock restored to a dividend basis after a lapse of six years, the various lettered "stamped" issues still sell on a basis to yield over 8 per cent., with the exception of the A stock, which is slightly below an 8 per cent. basis. The new 7 per cent. price preference stock, Monday, sold up to a new high price at 103½, where the yield on the investment would be approximately 6.78 per cent.

Boston & Maine is earning the dividends on the prior preference and first preferred stock with a wide margin and with maintenance of the present excellent record of the road, and as appreciation of the strength of its position grows, the preferred issues may naturally be expected to work up to a higher price level. In the six months ended June 30, Boston & Maine earned a surplus, after charges of $2,832,958, against a surplus of but $905,767 in the corresponding period of 1925.

Annual dividend requirements on the prior preference are $1,680,726. In other words, the road in six months came within $821,767 of earning a year's dividend on both prior preference and first preferred stocks. It should be noted, furthermore, that the benefits which should flow from the expenditure of $13,000,000 of new money represented by the prior preference issue have not yet begun to be felt.

The following issues carry: selling prices on the firm, preferred stamped stocks, dividend rate, yield, and 1925 low prices:

Class of stock	Dividend rate	Price	Yield	1925 low
1st preferred A	6%	97½	6.15	90
1st preferred B	6%	97½	6.15	90
1st preferred C	7	103½	6.76	95
1st preferred D	7	103	6.80	95

New Hampshire has filed a reply to the answer of the Boston & Maine railroad in the suit brought by the State to prevent the closing of the locomotive shops in Concord. The State declares the assertion that the shops are not economical "false and fictitious." The railroad had asserted that locomotive repairs work was to be concentrated at the Billerica shops. Sic.

contends that this had not been done, even though it were economical.

Stock Analysis

Missouri Kansas Texas Railroad Company operates over 3,000 miles of road which extends from St. Louis and Hannibal southwesterly to Galveston and San Antonio, Texas. Several large branches are also operated.

Revenue freight tonnage on this road decreased slightly during the nine years ending in 1925 but this was largely due to the abandonment of the cotton belt service. During this period there was a marked increase in the volume of manufactured goods carried and a corresponding decrease in the percentage to total freight of mine and agricultural products.

The increased percentage of high grade freight consequently has affected earnings favorably. Gross revenues in 1925 were larger than in any other year excepting the three-year period ending in 1921.

Because of improvement in earnings the company was able to inaugurate dividends at the rate of 5 per cent. on its preferred stock in December, 1924. There have, however, never been any dividends paid on the common stock since the company was incorporated.

Recently there have been rumors connecting the road with a group of western roads in an important proposed merger through the purchase of stock control by the majority of the debt issues of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

TIDE WATER OIL MAKES REPORT FOR HALF YEAR

Report of Tide Water Oil Company and subsidiaries for six months ended June 30 shows net income of $2,731,618 after depreciation, depletion, Federal taxes, etc., equal after dividends on 5 per cent. preferred stock, to $1.81 a share earned on 2,128,372 shares of common, as compared with $3,867,245 or $7.66 a share (or $1.60 on 504,429 shares of common outstanding) in first half of 1925.

If This Be Nullification Make the Most of It

That gifted Kansan, former Governor Henry J. Allen, contributes to the discussion of prohibition this curious dictum:

"If you modify the Volstead Act you nullify the Eighteenth Amendment."

If this were true, there are many whom it would not appall; among them so good an American as former President Arthur T. Hadley, of Yale, who has written:

"Nullification is the safety-valve which helps a self-governing community avoid the alternative between tyranny and revolution. It reduces the tension; it gives a warning to those in authority which they disregard at their own peril."

But how does Brother Allen arrive at his opinion? Upon what basis of proof does it rest?

A great many modifications of the Volstead Act are possible under the Eighteenth Amendment. There is one in particular which we should think that he, as a good "dry," would especially wish to have made.

Section 29 of the Volstead Act expressly exempts from penalty the manufacture of "non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices exclusively for use in the home."

Here the standard of intoxication is not "one-half of 1 per cent.," as the act elsewhere fixes, but is an open question of fact. Advantage of it is being taken in millions of homes to make drinks comparable in potency with moonshine or "blind mule."

If report speaks truly, it is being done frequently throughout arid Kansas.

Surely, it would not nullify the Constitution to have the Volstead Act made to apply its prohibition uniformly. That it has been politically jockeyed to bear heavily upon the cities, while leaving a great loophole to rural thirst, is recognised as among its proudest hypocrisies. The chance to drink hard cider and fermented fruit juices was the price of much so-called "dry" support.

It is possible under the Eighteenth Amendment to make the intoxicating power of every beverage a question of fact.

Were that done, some of the objection to prohibition would vanish. For, while the Constitution is not the place in which to embed sumptuary legislation, no great body of American opinion favors chronic intoxication.

Long before constitutional prohibition was enacted, drunkenness had fallen into disfavor, condemned alike by conscience, temperance and economic sense.

But if to protest in the name of good order against prohibition's growing evils, including corruption of officials, collapse of respect for law, intensified hypocrisy and the multiplication of places worse than the old-time saloons, be cause wholly unscrupulous and lawless, is nullification, then so be it.

The protest will continue until the evils are reduced. For temperance, not hypocrisy, is still the goal of every right thinking American.

One in Every Ten

A Great Army of Future Citizens Pledged to Keep Themselves Straight

One American lad in every ten is now registered as a Boy Scout. That means a great army of future citizens pledged and habituated to "help other people at all times" and to keep themselves "physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

Helping them as scoutmasters and assistants are 41,000 clean men, themselves kept to higher standards by the contact, and 120,000 other men, who act as councilors or serve on committees.

In the sixteenth annual report of this fine organization, just issued, we read this striking sentence:

"The aim of the scout movement is to inculcate character, which, though essential to success in life, is not taught within the school . . . and is too generally left to chance."

Leaving to chance the building of sound character does not pay. Society in its own defense will have to resume the strengthening of the virtues among its young.

All Animals in One

Avoid the FOOLISH Hat

Some human beings are tigers, wolves, hyenas, serpents, monkeys. And ninety-nine per cent. are sheep following blindly. Helen Wills wore one kind of eyeshade, now 300,000 of them are sold each day. In Massachusetts a child's eyes and forehead were severely burned when a celluloid eyeshade caught fire from a magnifying glass in a playmate's hand.

That is not the chief danger. It resides in the fact that these senseless "hats" leave the top of the head UNCOVERED, exposing the brain to the sun's hurtful actinic rays.

Don't let your little boy wear a topless hat in the sunshine, especially if he has BLOND hair. Thick BLACK hair checks the actinic rays. That's why nature gives such hair to human beings in Africa.

Our Neighbors Prosper

We Rejoice

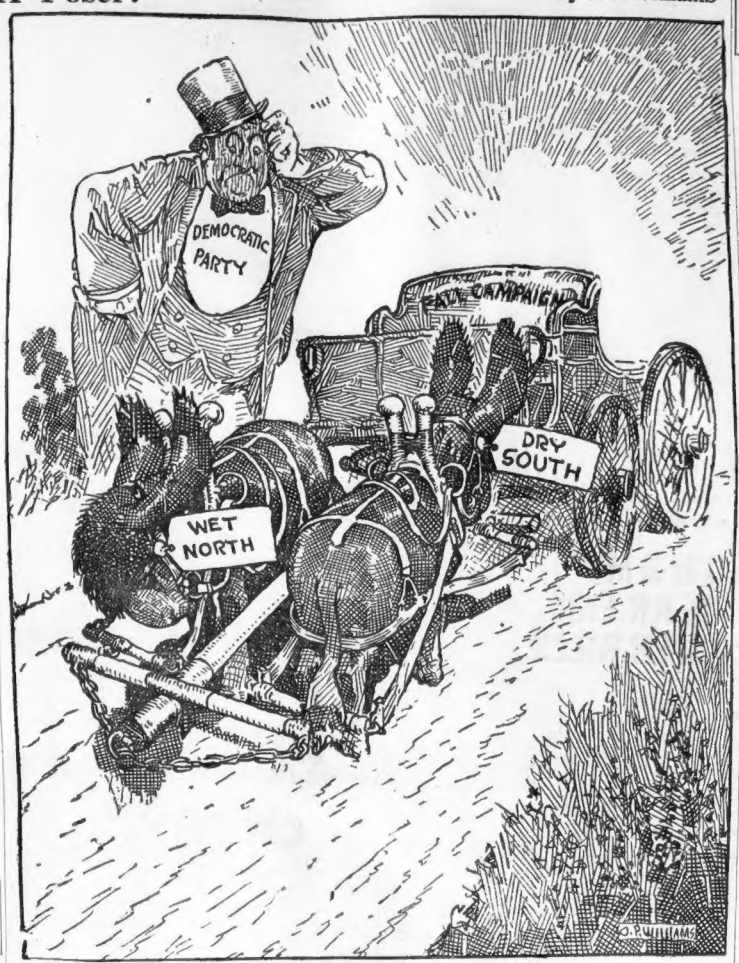
Our Canadian neighbors are prosperous and, thanks to our having built the Panama Canal, they do an enormous business exporting wheat from the Northwest to Europe.

Last year Canada exported 249,583,470 bushels, worth $364,201,388. All of this is good news. We want our neighbors to succeed

Japan was Canada's biggest customer among all the nations in the wheat market, which shows that the sensible Japanese understand perfectly well that their exclusion from Canada and other countries is not an insult to their race, but a tribute to their [illegible] ability.

A Poser!

By O. P. Williams



THE experiment of traveling both ways at the same time has been tried many times in politics and always has failed.

It is bad enough when the politicians attempt it. Imagine then, the perplexity of the politicians when they find their constituents doing the same thing.

The only consolation we can think of for the gentleman in the picture is that if he were labeled "Republican Party" and the "Dry South" were changed to the "Dry West," his dilemma would be identical.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MRS. EDWARD DOANE thinks it Wonderful to be a Modern Wife and Mother.

Mrs. Doane is one of those brisk, efficient ladies with the weather-proof smiles who are always referred to as a Power in the Community. She's at the head of three clubs and all the political movements. Besides that she manages Ed and three little Doanes.

Of course she has a housekeeper, but even think of the dancing lessons and the French lessons and the swimming lessons and the Summer camps she has to attend to. But although everyone says she does enough for six women, she wouldn't give up a bit of it.

"For it's so wonderful to be a modern woman, with all her advantages and power," scintillates the busy Mrs. Doane. "Think of the centuries when women were not much better than cattle—when they had no voice in affairs—"

I'm thinking of them, lady.

I'm thinking of one who lived in the dim beginning of things, in the days when the great ice cap lay over Europe and fire was the possession of a few isolated tribes.

No dancing lessons then in the mothering job—no bridge clubs—no vacuum cleaners or electric washing machines. Yet somehow some of the ladies managed to have quite a voice in affairs.

There was May, the wife of White Bear.

Johannes V. Jensen tells about her in his beautiful and amazing story, "The Long Journey."

White Bear was born on the great Ice Cap, but he fled in his young manhood and took May with him. Slowly, with infinite patience, they made their way south, until they came to a warmer land by the sea.

There, while the new world thundered and shook in its travail, in utter loneliness, without tools or friendly hands, written word or woman voice to aid her, May made a home for her man and his sons.

She made the home. She WAS the home. Out of her, out of the strength of her flesh, the difficult thought of her brain, the struggle and peace of her great mother heart, came food and protection for them all.

She tamed the wild cattle and so got milk and butter and cheese. She gathered seeds slowly, obeying some inner urge within herself, and planted them in a little plot scratched out in the wilderness.

And so in time, when finally the fire came, she was able to bake bread. She gathered fat in little pots which she made herself from clay.

She dried and smoked the surplus meat, prepared the hides, discovered flax and wove it into coarse cloth.

Out of her it came, food and clothing and life itself. Out of her, too, came courage and that sense of safety when the day was done. She cradled them all within her life as she had cradled them once in her womb.

This is what Johannes Jensen says of her: "No future existed for May and no far-reaching dreams, but she was faithful in small things. While White Bear in fervid forgetfulness of everything around him, was busy with his boats, May was dutifully building up a practice which was of a very real nature and which grew with the years under her hands. She never got excited, never changed her habits that she knew of, and yet, in her beneficient woman's way, she had produced many new and indispensable things in the course of years.

"White Bear perhaps did not see much of her little daily efforts, being always on the go and always blinded by his sailor's dreams, but she saw herself as White Bear's support and the other half of himself.

"And so she was there, had always been there, full of vigor and gentleness, always a child with her, always about, backward and forward, on the short paths of the homestead, feeding and protecting. To see her beyond a call from the settlement was a rare thing, and it meant extra beers for dinner.

"There was much thunder in these years, and in a chance flash White Bear would see May standing in the drowning rain, surrounded by her children and domestic animals, reposing in herself with calm eyes in the midst of the storm, while all sought refuge in her arms.

"The thunder was beyond her comprehension, as were all the affairs of the Great Ones or those that came within the sphere of Men; but the children and the timid animals came to her to share the calm that proceeded from her heart.

"And thus White Bear remembered her afterward, when youth had vanished: the taste of rain like clouds on the tongue, the fiery fumes of lightning close at hand, and then May with her hair down her back, smelling like the wild dame-wort, which stretches its flowery hands to sun and rain."

"The calm that proceeded from her heart"—I wonder if modern wives and mothers will find again a power over men such as that first mother had.

TRAVEL MAKES US MORE AMERICAN

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE Crown Prince of Sweden, who lately visited this country, said:

"Personal intercourse between the individuals of two different nations I believe to be one of the best means of promoting individual understanding and to remove every possible cause for distrust or dissension.

"What could be a more praiseworthy purpose than to send young men and women from one country to another to study various sides of human activity?"

The Crown Prince struck the nail on the head. Travel is one of the best means of producing international solidarity.

It was proposed some time ago, by Mr. Filene I believe, that the United State take all of its unused boats and make a very low rate for tourist excursions to Europe.

Steamship lines have seen the light in this matter and are making very low rates for students and others of that kind who would like to go to Europe.

Nothing can more expand the mind and allay national vanity so well as going to see other countries. Whatever promotes travel is good for a nation and whatever hinders intercourse is harmful.

The whole passport and visa business is a nuisance and should be done away with. It discourages travel instead of encouraging it.

One of the greatest sources of revenue of France and Italy is the tourist.

America has plenty of money and recognizes its cultural debt to Europe. It is willing to spend much in sending its citizens to visit other countries.

This will make them not less, but more American than they ever were. It is a good thing and ought to be fostered and not hindered.

Gentlemen Prefer Blondes

"GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES"

This ingenious cartoon, reproduced from Mr. Charles Dana Gibson's clever and amiable "Life," tells much more plainly and accurately than several columns of words could do THE ATTITUDE OF MILLIONS OF AMERICANS TOWARD PROHIBITION.

"Miss Moderation," representing light wine and beer, is the blonde lady, and Prohibition, on Uncle Sam's arm, is the stern brunette.

Charles Dana Gibson is RIGHT, and so is the brilliant young lady who wrote the book, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

Gentlemen DO prefer blondes, but as many of them married know, fate does not always send them what they prefer, and fate RULES them.

It may be that Miss Moderation, with her blonde beer and red wine, would suit many Americans, but unless they break the law they will stick to stern Brunette Prohibition for many a year to come.

The interesting thing about this is the proof that merely putting a thing into the Constitution or into the law does not MAKE IT SO, when millions are opposed to it.

Prohibition as it stands was passed without submitting the question to any vote of the people. They learned that they were no longer to have beer, wine OR WHISKEY, the good and the bad were wiped out together. They have never been asked their opinion or allowed to vote nationally.

It is as though you should wake up tomorrow morning and learn that "hereafter sugar, meat and coffee are not to be used by Americans. It is true you have used them, some of you MODERATELY, some of you IMMODERATELY. But that is all over. Now you are all to be vegetarians."

You might make it a law. You might put it into the Constitution. You could undoubtedly close the butcher shops and coffee shops and prohibit the sale of sugar.

But, as Mr. Gibson puts it, "Gentlemen would prefer blondes."

LEGENDS INSPIRATION OF PATRIOTISM

By Garrett P. Serviss,

SOMEWHERE recently I have read in connection with the problem of preserving American history from being "debunked," i. e., deprived of patriotic sentiment, an admonition to "preserve the legends." Taken in a reasonable sense that is excellent advice.

Patriotic legends are the mother's milk of nations. Only those who would destroy all nations in the vain pursuit of an impossible cosmopolitanism desire the utter eradication of the legendary element from history.

It is only through the jostling of independent nations, attended occasionally by a violent clash, that the current of human progress is kept going. Complete cosmopolitanism would mean stagnation and final degeneration.

We are not all alike and we cannot make ourselves all alike. The Lord introduced plurality of ideas and ideals into the world when he "saw that it was not good that man should be alone," and, taking one of Adam's ribs, out of it made Eve.

Modern biologists ridicule this kind of genesis but know nothing about it, for they are not living in the Garden of Eden.

No Second Eden

There has been no second Eden in the world since the first was closed and barred, and from the time when the angel with the flaming sword was stationed at the shut gate men have learned that the only safe refuge in this life is a country that one can call his own.

The typical outcast is the man without a country. When Roscoe Conkling drawled out that patriotism was "the last refuge of a scoundrel" his sarcasm cut deep beneath the skin of those who would make love of country a mere pretext in selfish politics. What one loves, one exalts.

There was once a school of historians who demolished, or imagined that they did, the whole legendary story of Rome. They strove to laugh down Livy and the other ancient historians and chroniclers who lived thousands of years nearer the events than they did.

And what had they to offer in exchange? Only, as a great modern historian has admitted, "clever inductions and subtle arguments."

So, too, the historical specialists made a target of Herodotus, until it began to appear in spite of them that Herodotus knew remarkably well what he was talking about, and was able to appreciate a legend for the substantial and inspirational truth that was behind it.

And therein lies the immense value of the many noble legends pertaining to American history. To deprive the youth of the country of its patriotic legends is like depriving children of Santa Claus.

The child spirit of any Christian community is darkened when the Santa Claus story is banished. Yet that is confessedly a pure invention, while the historical legends have truth for a basis; in no case is any important patriotic legend a pure invention. It may be heightened in the telling, it may gather extraneous details in the course of many re-tellings, but at heart it is true.

Truest Things

If in some cases it does not tell with exactness what some patriotic hero or heroine did, it tells what he or she wished or tried to do, or what their fellow countrymen desired and expected to be done—and is not that history, too? Traditions are formed out of the atmosphere of the times to which they relate.

They grow from the hearts of the people concerned, and are therefore as much entitled to acceptance as human documents as are meagre, unspiritual records of bare facts, which, be it remembered, are never the whole facts and nothing but the facts.

The absolute and complete truth about no event can be obtained. That is one of the first things that the lawyer, the judge and the journalist learn from active life.

The truest things known to man are the product of the human spirit brooding upon the events and tendencies of the world, and such find their most effective expression in the legends and traditions of races and nations.
